EXTRADITION PAPERS FOR THAW

TEN SPECIAL POLICE GUARD HIM

Colebrook Works Itself Up Into Talk of Plots and Counter Plots of Kidnapping While Hearing in Court is Delayed and New Counsel for Prisoner Arrives From Pennsylvania

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 12.—District Attorney Conger, of Dutchess county, left for Albany this morning carrying extradition papers asking for the return of Harry K. Thaw from Colebrook, N. H.

As soon as Acting-Governor Glynn signs the papers, Mr. Conger will take them to New Hampshire.

Colebrook, N. H., Sept. 12.—Harry K. Thaw was guarded carefully by ten special policemen when the time came for his arraignment to-day before Police Judge James T. Carr on a complaint setting forth that he was wanted in the state of New York on a charge of conspiracy to defeat justice by escaping from Matteawan asylum. Talk of plots and counterplots to kidnap Thaw were heard to-day. The pro-Thaw Canadian contingent, which followed him over the border after his sudden deportation was somewhat depleted to-day, although more than a dozen were awaiting the outcome of the court procedure.

While residents of Colebrook are evincing great interest in the case they have taken no open stand either for or against the fugitive.

The hearing was delayed by conferences between counsel for both sides. Each feared to make a move on the theory that if the fugitive were released the situation would resolve itself into a physical struggle.

Counsel for the fugitive agreed to waive the hearing here, provided counsel for New York would consent to a hearing before Governor Feltner on the matter of his signing the extradition warrant with five days respite in order to give time for obtaining a habeas corpus writ, should the governor decide that the prisoner must be surrendered to New York. Ex-Governor Stone, of Pennsylvania, arrived to-day and joined the Thaw counsel.

THAW SUMS UP SOME FACTS REGARDING HIS POSITION AND ASKS THE PUBLIC QUESTION

Colebrook, N. H., Sept. 12.—Thaw issued a formal statement this morning: "I think the people of my own state would like to know by what warrant of law or commonsense the money of the people of the state of New York is being squandered like water by many more thousands of dollars than is available to me in these persistent and unscrupulous efforts to return me to Matteawan.

"If I am sane then certainly I don't belong in Matteawan; if I am insane then the laws of New York state make it compulsory that I be deported from New York to my home state, Pennsylvania.

"The statutes of New York require that insane persons from another state who are sent to Matteawan or to any other New York prison asylum not charged with crime, and I as an acquitted man stand exactly in this class, shall be reported to the state board of deportation and promptly sent out of the state back to the state of their residence.

"The United States have adjudicated me a resident of Pittsburgh and reaffirmed this fact within three months.

"Now why does any New York official squander New York money to return me?"

(Signed) "HARRY K. THAW."

LIVERPOOL TO RENDER FULL CIVIC HONORS

Body of Late Mayor of New York to Lie in State at Town Hall To-day

Liverpool, Sept. 12.—Arrangements were made to-day by the Liverpool authorities to render full civic honors to the body of the late mayor of New York, William J. Gaynor, on the arrival of the steamer Baltic here this afternoon.

It was ordered that the body should lie in state in the town hall, guarded by a detachment of police, until the time arrived to take the casket on board the Lusitania for shipment back to New York.

The lord mayor of Liverpool took charge of the arrangements. "In compliment to New York, with which Liverpool has such close ties, and as a mark of sympathy with the American people," he announced, "I have arranged with the steamship officials to have the body transferred immediately to the town hall from the ship."

According to the programme prepared by the authorities the body will be removed to the Lusitania to-morrow morning.

The lord mayor to-day forwarded to Mayor Adolph L. Kline a cablegram expressing his sympathy with the people of New York.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MEN AT SPOKANE CONFERENCE

Bishop of Montana Speaks at Opening of Seventh International Pacific Coast Meeting

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 12.—Six different meetings were on the programme to-day of the seventh international Pacific coast conference of churchmen. The celebration of the Holy Communion was accompanied by an address of the Very Rev. J. Wilmer Gresham, of San Francisco. The conference was opened by A. C. Newell, of Portland, the president. The address of the opening session was delivered by the Right Rev. L. R. Brewer, bishop of Montana. He spoke on "The Baptismal View."

Two conferences were held this afternoon and two, one for men and one for women, are scheduled for to-night. Churchmen from British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, Montana, California and Colorado are to speak.

BODY IDENTIFIED.

New York, Sept. 12.—The woman who was murdered ten days ago and whose body was cut up and thrown into the Hudson river, was identified to-day as Mrs. Casper Janis, of this city. Although the head, arms and legs are missing, the body was identified by a mark on the back. The woman's husband made the identification and told the police she had disappeared from her home on August 14.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR

Cornish, N. H., Sept. 12.—President Wilson and the British ambassador, Sir Arthur Cecil Spring-Rice will be spectators at the bird masque to be presented at the bird sanctuary at Meriden to-night as a protest against the slaughter of wild birds for millinery purposes.

SUGGESTS SOUNDER POLICY ON FREIGHT

W. Black Noble Criticizes Canadian Government in Regard to Ocean Shipping Rates

London, Sept. 12.—W. Black Noble, writing to the Times on the subject of Canadian freight rates and with particular reference to the mission of Chairman Drayton, of the Dominion Railway Commission with whom he has conferred, expresses the opinion that the Canadian government would be adopting a sounder policy if, instead of advocating state control of ocean rates they would consider the question in a more general sense, and apart from the interest of the Canadian millers.

In regard to the claim that the rates on flour are excessive as compared with grain, and that the existing preferential tariff is practically neutralized by the exorbitant rates on westbound goods, the writer describes it as incredible that any body of right-thinking men could entertain such proposals as are being put forward; first, that ocean-carriers should be treated as, and if necessary legislated into the position of common carriers; secondly, that the Canadian government would form a fleet of vessels of their own for the conveyance of eastbound produce and westbound merchandise; and, thirdly, that powers under the three-mile limit of territorial jurisdiction should be exercised in connection with steamers trading to Canadian ports.

"It would be much better," concludes Mr. Noble, "if, instead of spending money in establishing a state department, a very dilatory and inefficient method of obtaining their object, the Canadian government employed their money in forming a fund for subsidizing merchant shipowners who are unable to carry on profitably the business which is necessary to the well-being and prosperity of Canada."

By dealing with the situation in any other manner the inevitable result will be the restriction of export or import facilities.

DUKE IS BANKRUPT.

London, Sept. 12.—The Duke of Manchester, husband of Helen Zimmern, of Cincinnati, is hopelessly in the toils of the money-lenders. A petition in bankruptcy, filed by one of them, will be heard in the bankruptcy court to-day. The Duke owns 70,000 acres and a magnificent gallery of old masters, but these are either mortgaged or heavily mortgaged.

FOUR ARRESTED IN RUBENSTEIN MURDER

Montreal, Sept. 12.—Under dramatic circumstances Nathan Rubenstein and Henry Dryfus, two bookmakers at Bluebonnets racetrack, were placed under arrest this morning by special detectives in connection with the mysterious case of Abe Rubenstein, who was murdered in Ottawa. Four persons have now been arrested in this case, two colored women giving their names as Lottie Brangman and Bonnie Sims, who were seen in company of Rubenstein, are the others in custody. The four prisoners are being held here at detective quarters awaiting the arrival of the crown prosecutor from Ottawa this afternoon.

Transcontinental Can Be Used In Fall To Relieve Grain Blockade

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—Should a grain blockade occur this winter, as in some seasons past, the national transcontinental line from Winnipeg to Cochrane will be placed into commission as a means of relief. Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of railways and canals, returned from North Bay last evening. He has for the past three weeks been inspecting the Cochrane section of the road and railway conditions generally in northern Ontario.

Mr. Cochrane says that the Cochrane-Winnipeg section of the transcontinental will not be entirely complete till next spring but can be utilized for service to relieve a strain if necessary this fall.

A train of six heavy private cars was moved over the line at high speed recently. There are a few plank-holes that are giving some little trouble and there are a few temporary bridges to be replaced by permanent structures, but the bridges now in use are fit for service in case of emergency after the cold weather sets in.

NEW YORK MOURNS FOR MAYOR GAYNOR

Public Funeral by City Will Be Held After Arrival of Lusitania

ADOLPH L. KLINE NOW IN EXECUTIVE CHAIR

Messages of Condolence From Many Places to City and Bereaved Family

PARAGRAPH IN EARLY LETTER IS RECALLED

New York, Sept. 12.—George McAneny, president of the borough of Manhattan and Fusion candidate for president of the board of aldermen, was designated to-day by the Gaynor campaign managers as their candidate for mayor, to take the place made vacant by Mayor Gaynor's death.

New York, Sept. 12.—New York was a city of mourning to-day for its dead mayor, William J. Gaynor. Flags flew at half-mast and public buildings, the city hall, police headquarters and the municipal building were draped in black.

The board of estimates, called together by Adolph L. Kline, the mayor's successor, met this forenoon to arrange for a public funeral to be held shortly after the arrival here of the mayor's body aboard the steamer Lusitania, which sailed to-day from Liverpool and is due here a week from to-day.

There also was to be a conference of the commissioners of various city departments and of the board of aldermen, to pass appropriate resolutions on the death of the late mayor, and to talk in hand the reins of the city government.

The recent resignation of John Purroy Mitchell, now candidate for mayor, from the presidency of the board of aldermen, and the sudden elevation of Mr. Kline, vice-chairman of the board, to the mayor's chair, has left the board without a head.

The new mayor, a Republican, who will serve until a successor, to be chosen at the coming November election, is inaugurated on January 1, intends, he has announced, to carry out the policies of the Gaynor administration in so far as he knows them, and to make no changes in appointed officials.

Messages of condolence from all parts of the country continued to pour in to-day at the office of the mayor's secretary and at the Gaynor country home, St. James, L. I., where Mrs. Gaynor and her children are reported to be bearing their loss with fortitude.

The dead mayor's friends recalled to-day a paragraph he wrote in a letter to his sister soon after the attempt on his life three years ago. It was this: "I was not a bit afraid to die if that was God's will of me. I said to myself: 'Just as well as a few years from now. No one who contemplates the immensity of the Almighty God, His universe and His works, and realizes what an atom He is in it all, can fear to die in this flesh; yes, even though it were true that he is to lose his identity and be dissolved forever into the infinity of matter and mind from which he came.'"

AVIATOR IS KILLED.

Muenster, Germany, Sept. 12.—Aviator Hand Lorenz was killed here as he was completing a two-hours flight. He steered the machine downward too sharply and the wing buckled, the aeroplane falling to the ground.

HON. A. E. M'PHILLIPS ON COURT OF APPEAL

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—Falcon and Hope islands of the Friendly or Tonga group in the South Pacific have disappeared from view, with several hundred natives and a few white men.

News to this effect was brought to San Francisco to-day by Captain J. H. Trask, of the steamer Sonoma, which arrived from Sydney, via Pago Pago and Honolulu.

"One of the regular trading steamers between Sydney and the Tonga group witnessed the sinking of the islands," said Captain Trask. "The vessel steamed to where Falcon Island should have been, but it was nowhere in sight."

Just prior to this the instruments at the Sydney naval station showed that several violent earthquake shocks had taken place about 2,000 miles northeast of Sydney.

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—It is understood here that the appointment to the vacancy on the appeal court bench of British Columbia lies between Hon. D. M. Eberts, M. P., and Hon. A. E. M'Phillips. The impression prevails that the appointment is almost certain to go to the last named.

PROVINCIAL ORE TO BE SHOWN IN 1915

Mining Men Displaced With Method of Exhibiting Specimens at Ghent

Vancouver, Sept. 12.—Definite word has been conveyed to H. H. Brown, director of Canadian exhibits, who is at present in Ghent, Belgium, in charge of the Canadian display at the Ghent universal and international exhibition, that provision has been made for space for British Columbian ores in the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

One phase that does not please the mining men of this province is the statement of Col. Hutchinson, to the effect that: "I can assure you we can hardly take inside of our building ores that are not recommended by the head of the geological department of British Columbia."

"It is not the developed mines that we want to bring before the world as much as those prospects that have a bona fide ore body," said Mr. Brown, in discussing the situation, "and when we remember that the Britannia, Nickel Plate and other big producers of this province were turned down by the geologists as being too low-grade prospects to work successfully, we feel that the best of the prospects should be included in the exhibit from this province."

TONGA GROUP ISLANDS IN PACIFIC DISAPPEAR

Persons on Trading Ship Saw Populated Falcon and Hope Sink Below Water.

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—Falcon and Hope islands of the Friendly or Tonga group in the South Pacific have disappeared from view, with several hundred natives and a few white men.

Columbia Liberals Chose Buckman

Yale Convention Names McConnell

Spence's Bridge, B. C., Sept. 12.—Two Liberal candidates are now in the field in British Columbia for the provincial election, which is believed to be not far distant. Some days ago the Liberals of the Columbia riding chose John A. Buckman to lead them in battle, and at a crowded convention here last night, John P. McConnell, of Vancouver, was unanimously nominated Liberal candidate for Yale. The convention was highly enthusiastic and predictions of victory were heard on every side. James Murphy presided.

Delegates from every part of the Yale riding were on hand, and there were reports of the excellent progress being made by the Liberal cause throughout the district.

The following towns were represented at the convention: Nicola, Merritt, Canford, Wallachin, Keeyra, Hope, Lytton, Yale, North Bend, Agassiz, Voght Valley, Ladlaw, Cache Creek, Mammette Lake, Coules, Coldwater, Kanaka Bar, Otter Valley, Middlesboro, Aspen Grove, Ashcroft, Gladwyn, Ruby Creek, Lower Nicola.

PARLIAMENTARIANS HEAR ADMIRAL

PRaise AUSTRALIAN NAVAL POLICY

Donald McMaster and Hamar Greenwood With Four Other British Members Are Admitted to New South Wales Bar; Chief Justice Cullen Speaks of Debt to British Judicial Institutions

Sydney, N. S. W., Sept. 12.—The speech of Admiral King-Hall, commander-in-chief of the Australian navy during the banquet last night given in honor of the visiting British parliamentary party, proved the feature of the evening. In his address the admiral was loud in his praises of the Commonwealth's scheme for assisting in the defence of the empire.

Admiral King-Hall spoke feelingly on the great progress being made in the naval policy of the Commonwealth. He praised the Australian naval policy as the only practical one and emphasized the imperial character of the fleet.

Six of the touring parliamentarians, two of whom, Donald McMaster and Hamar Greenwood, are Canadians, were admitted to the New South Wales Bar. The honor was conferred on the motion of the attorney-general, Hon. W. A. Holman.

Sir William Cullen, chief justice, who presided, expressed his great gratification at the admission of the visitors to the New South Wales Bar.

The court and the community, he said, owed a profound debt of gratitude to the judicial institutions of the mother country. Upon the foundations laid by that time-honored system of jurisprudence, legislators and judicial tribunals had been built.

From its ideals of justice, he continued, freedom had been derived. In the discharge of their public duties with courtesy and fairness they had found the highest standards embodied in the traditions of that great institution.

NEW CALEDONIA PREFERS AUSTRALIAN CONTROL

DELEGATION POINTS TO MENACE BY JAPANESE

Melbourne, Sept. 12.—Control by Australia of New Caledonia was urged yesterday upon Attorney-general Glynn by a large deputation representing the Australian natives' association. The speaker pointed out that Japanese are migrating there in large numbers and constitute a menace to the Australian position.

It is possible to arrange negotiations on the matter with the French authorities. In reply Mr. Glynn said that the French were not apathetic in their administration of New Caledonia and their sense of national honor was keen. He said he felt that the question of the Pacific islands was closely connected with the Australian interests and it would probably be possible to secure an informal conference between imperial, Australian and French representatives regarding New Caledonia. If Australia assumed control of the island the responsibility would be enormous.

He expressed the hope that he would be able to make desirable suggestions to the British government on the matter. The speaker said that he was interested in Australia's proposals on anything connected with the Pacific.

New Caledonia lies 700 miles east of the coast of Queensland and was annexed by France in 1853. The island is noted for its famous nickel mines and is also used by France as a penal settlement chiefly for political prisoners. There are about 12,000 of the latter now on the island.

EUROPE IS HUERTA'S PROBABLE OBJECTIVE

Straws Showing Which Way His Intentions Blow Mark Early Resignation

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Sept. 12.—There are persistent rumors current here that General Huerta intends to resign from the presidency at an early date. Tending to support these rumors are two stories from an authentic source. One is to the effect that an American, calling on the provisional president, asked him what he intended to do. General Huerta smiled, and replied that one of his eyes had been troubling him greatly of late. Then he laughed and added that if that eye became worse he might have to leave the country and have an operation some time early in October. As a matter of fact, General Huerta underwent an operation for cataract several months ago.

The other story was told recently by an Englishman, who quoted General Huerta as saying: "Well, it is quite possible that by the end of the week or soon after I shall no longer be president."

According to many persons who have come to Vera Cruz from the capital, the impression is growing there that General Huerta will withdraw from the presidency. The majority of them are inclined to the belief that he will enter the electoral race others that he will follow General Porfirio Diaz to Europe.

BRITISH SQUADRON AT PANAMA EXHIBITION

May Come to Victoria in 1915 if Request is Made to the Admiralty

(Special Correspondence.)

London, Aug. 31.—The newspapers here have been publishing detailed reports regarding the British squadron which is to be sent to represent this country on the occasion of the opening of the Panama canal and the exhibition at San Francisco, but it is all surmise. It is called at the Admiralty this week and was told that absolutely nothing had been arranged, as the period was too far ahead. Undoubtedly the British navy will be represented, but we are waiting to see the progress, both of the canal and of the exhibition. From what I gather the Canadians in the west who may care to see the same British fleet visit, Victoria and the north Pacific after or before the call at San Francisco can easily arrange this by putting forth an official request, only it should be done in good time so that the Admiralty can make the necessary arrangements. The opportunity may be worth utilizing as the fleet is certain to be a large one.

There is by the way some disposition to utilize the participation of Canada in the San Francisco exhibition as a means of galvanizing the British foreign office and the board of trade into taking the same line of policy. At present there is no indication that Great Britain will reverse her decision not to be represented. Some private individuals have publicly regretted the abstention, but with the exception of the industrious and pushful Sir Thomas Lipton not one manufacturer or trader has come forward to urge that the decision be revoked. This is sufficiently significant.

COMPLAINED OF FOOD ON CUNARD STEAMER

Anemia With 600 Passengers Held at Southampton When Stewards Strike.

London, Sept. 12.—The Cunard liner Anemia, with 600 passengers aboard, bound for Canada, was held up several hours at Southampton last night because of a strike of the stewards. The men complained of the food among other things, and demanded the removal of the chief steward. When this was refused the sailors refused to touch the ropes, and shortly afterward, when the stewards were told off to serve tea to the passengers, they refused to obey. The police were then sent for, and a detachment guarded the gangway to prevent the men from coming ashore.

A delegate of the National Sailors' union, who was called in by the men, stated that on several voyages the crew had complained of the food. They had sent a report to the Cunard officials, who had promised a remedy of the grievance.

The company finally agreed to appoint a new chief steward, upon which the men consented to return to work.

Those against whom the charge was withdrawn, and who were released from custody, were Steve Arman, Joseph Burns and John Louden.

CRUSHED BY TOMBSTONE.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12.—Bertram Spels, the young son of Mrs. Anna Spels, met a gruesome fate Wednesday when he was fatally crushed beneath a tombstone in St. Mary's cemetery. The lad had climbed on the headstone, when it toppled over. He had accompanied his mother to the burial ground to strew flowers on his uncle's grave.

This Treatment Will Make Hairs Vanish

(Modes of To-day.)

No woman need tolerate objectionable hair or fuzz, because with a paste made with powdered delatone and water it is easy to banish hairy growths. This paste should be applied to the skin for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off, and with it comes every trace of hair. Washing the skin leaves it free from spot or blemish. Thin eyebrows grow thick and glossy if pyroxin is rubbed on occasionally, and for short, straight eyelashes, apply pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Use care and don't get pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

DIVIDED NATION IS FOUND IN ALBANIA

People Do Not Aspire to Autonomy or Their Independence

Paris, Sept. 12.—The Temps Albanian letter puts the demand made by Ali Pasha for autonomous government in a new light. M. de Jansen, the writer of the letter, in May and June of this year, visited Durazzo, Kavalla, Valona, Berat, Elbasan and the Lake of Ohrida.

He took every opportunity in the course of his journey to come into touch with the population, from Epirote tribes, the members of the provincial government, the orthodox archbishops and the Catholic clergy to the little Christian shopkeepers and the Mohammedan villagers.

From this intercourse he gained the conviction that there is no people in Albania aspiring either to autonomy or to independence, for, that it may be said that there is no such thing as an Albanian people. An Albanian race inhabits Albania, but it lacks every characteristic which forms nationality. Albania, says M. de Jansen, has no real language of its own, no historical traditions, no literature. The country is divided into two great sections, the Christian and the Mohammedan, and between them is an impassable gulf. They have but one point in common, and that is their dislike of the feudal system of the beya from which they both suffer, and which may be termed the "only national institution" of the country.

The Mohammedans, who are in a majority in the country, have no doubt but that Turkish supremacy will be restored. The efforts which M. de Jansen made to explain to them the meaning of autonomy and independence met with no success. He spoke to them of the possible advent of a European prince to take over the destinies of Albania, but met with silence. When pressed for an opinion they said they did not want a European prince for he might rob them of their religion.

As for the Christian minority they are entirely under the influence of the orthodox church, even the Kouzo Valaques being Greek at heart. Though much more progressive than the Mohammedans, the Christians dread the idea of autonomy. To them it spells nothing but the abolition of educational privileges, and the loss of their position in a subordinate position to the Mohammedan majority.

The cry for autonomous government in Albania has been raised entirely for selfish purposes. It is the effort of a group of the Albanian beya to preserve the feudal system by which they rule the people. They know well that the very first action of a new regime would be to put an end to their power. There is not the slightest doubt, the Temps correspondent sums up, that the granting of autonomy to Albania would be an altogether reactionary and artificial measure. To give some idea of the extraordinarily primitive nature of the Albanian chiefs who favor autonomy for their own ends, M. de Jansen quotes a conversation which he had with the famous Isa Boletina in the presence of the minister of war, Mehmed Pasha.

Boletina declared that unless Europe hand back to an autonomous Albania all that he owned in the vilayet of Kessovo, he, Isa Boletina, would wage war on Serbia. When asked to explain what kind of war he meant, he said a war carried on with guns and sabers, the only kind of war he understood. With this declaration the minister of war expressed his hearty approval.

WOMAN RUNS THROUGH FLAMES SAVING CHILD

Portland, Ore., Sept. 12.—Mrs. George Sanders, a Salem woman, picking hops near that place, yesterday afternoon entered a burning shack in which a child, three years old, left there by its parents, was threatened with death by the flames and brought the little one out. The child had been left while the family were working in the hopyard. Finding matches the little one started the fire, then was unable to escape. Mrs. Sanders, who reached the scene when the entire building was covered with flames, plunged into the structure at the risk of her life and saved the child. The parents of the child were unknown to the woman.

BARON DE FREYNE READ HIS OWN DEATH NOTICE

London, Sept. 12.—Baron de Freyne, former colonel of the Fifth battalion of Connaught Rangers, has been added to the group of persons privileged to read their obituary notices. The announcement of his death was given much space to-day in all morning newspapers in London, but proved untrue. Baron de Freyne is seriously ill, but his condition was no worse to-day than it has been for some time past. Members of his family could not account for the premature announcement.

LUSITANIA WILL CONVEY MAYOR'S BODY TO HOME

Death of New York Executive Chief Topic on Baltic on Arrival

Queensport, Ireland, Sept. 12.—Mayor Gaynor's death was the one topic of discussion among the passengers on the steamship Baltic when the vessel reached Queensport to-day, but they had learned no further details than those contained in Rufus Gaynor's message yesterday to the Associated Press, in which he said his father expired on Wednesday afternoon.

The mayor's body which had been taken by the ship's officers after being embalmed and placed in a steel casket, was placed in the ship's mortuary. It was expected that a transfer from the Baltic to the Lusitania would be made at Liverpool later to-day. The Lusitania is due in New York just a week from to-day.

One of the Baltic's passengers said that Mayor Gaynor had been the object of keen interest throughout the voyage, particularly as he had been barked so unexpectedly. As soon as it became known that the mayor was in indifferent health his fellow passengers took pains to respect his desire to remain quiet. They passed him sitting in a deck chair on the sunny side of the steamship, often there for hours, sometimes reading, but generally resting.

LUSTY BLOW ON JAW SAVES OPERATION

Berkeley, Cal., Sept. 12.—Martin Murphy, a butcher, was saved the cost of an operation when Walter Thompson, a cigar clerk, fractured his jaw with a lusty swat. The blow broke the jaw squarely over an infected wisdom tooth, which was buried in the bone. In the police court Wednesday two physicians testified that if the tooth had not been removed as a result of Thompson's fist work, Murphy eventually would have been put to a painful and expensive operation to rid himself of the offending molar.

The jury trying Thompson for assault promptly acquitted him, and several members urged the defendant to send Murphy a bill for professional services.

SALE OF LOTS AT PRINCE GEORGE BRITISH COLUMBIA

SITUATED at the confluence of the Fraser and Nechaco Rivers in Central British Columbia, 450 miles northeast of Vancouver, B. C., and 467 miles east of Prince Rupert, B. C., or midway between Prince Rupert and Edmonton, Alta., on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

By reason of its central location, Prince George will be the natural distributing point for the extensive territory comprised in the Pacific Province of the Dominion, and it has therefore long been the expectation of the general public that upon the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, Prince George will early become a large and important centre.

Having purchased what was known as the Fort George Indian Reserve No. 1 for the purpose of locating a townsite thereon, the Grand Trunk Pacific Development Company, Limited, has caused the same to be surveyed and platted, and will offer lots in this townsite for sale, by public auction, at Dominion Hall, Vancouver, British Columbia, commencing at 10 a.m. Wednesday, September 17, 1913, and at Edmonton, Alberta, Wednesday, September 24, 1913. Frank A. Ellis, auctioneer.

The terms of this sale will be one-quarter cash and the balance payable in one, two and three years with six per cent interest. For plans apply to Ticket Office at Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

NEW AGNOSTICISM IS DEBATED IN ENGLAND

Sir Oliver Lodge's Pronouncement Has Scientific World Talking on Subject

London, Sept. 12.—The reports that Sir Oliver Lodge, in his inaugural address before the British Association at Birmingham, on Wednesday night, would go further than he had ever gone before in putting forth his belief in the possibility of communication by spirits of departed with this world, and that his remarks would be in the nature of a reply to the materialistic argument with which Professor Edward Schaefer opened the last congress, served to kindle general interest to a remarkable degree. The address, although it did not quite come up to expectations as a sensational pronouncement, has been the subject of broad discussion among the scientists who listened to it, and others who have read the full report, published in the large papers. Most of the papers make editorial reference to the views announced. "The Times," under the heading, "The New Agnosticism," says:

"The whole discourse is a protest against arrogance. In recent years, science has been asserting its claims against a dogmatic theology. Perhaps some over-assertion was necessary, but over-assertion there certainly was. The public woke to find that they had only exchanged one priesthood for another. The laws of science were more sacrosanct than holy writ. Nothing which could not be weighed or measured was allowed any validity. In the midst of this, this history called itself 'agnosticism.'"

"The Times" concludes: "By natural transition, Sir Oliver Lodge passes on from existence in this world to its continuity hereafter, and to the question of immortality. Quietly but firmly he made his profession of faith in the persistence of personality beyond bodily death, of which he had been convinced by strict evidence and in the broad truth of religion. An imaginative close was thus made to a fine effort, one more consistent, we believe, with the present trend of advanced thought than repugnant to it."

"The Daily Telegraph" says: "If there is a constant and identical personality, we get a fair definition of what a soul means, as distinct from its material embodiment. We are guided by the president of the association from atoms and ether, electricity and radiation up to that final hypothesis which seems so astounding to the judgment of ordinary men. Would that the dead could communicate with the living!"

"The Daily News" says: "It is probable that his contention will be challenged upon unproved speculations, but none will deny the force of his protest against the negations of science or the validity of his appeal to the primal instincts and intimations of men in all ages and all lands."

GRAND JURY TO HOLD SESSION ON PRINCE

Los Angeles, Sept. 12.—Coincident with the arrival from Washington of a warrant for the deportation of Mrs. Clara Melcher, a Vienna laundress, whose charges against Prince Stanislaus Sulowski, Austrian nobleman and soldier, set federal officers on his trail, it was announced that a United States grand jury investigation of the case would begin here at once.

The prince is now in Japan with his bride, a Los Angeles heiress. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Freese, admitted last night they had been served with grand jury subpoenas.

The warrant for Mrs. Melcher's deportation will not be executed pending results of the grand jury inquiry.

CHARLTON TRIAL MAY STAND UNTIL APRIL

Como, Italy, Sept. 12.—Dr. Sala, whose duties include a visit to the prisoners in the Como jail every two weeks, today examined Porter Charlton, the young American charged with the murder of his wife at Lake Como. Dr. Sala said it would be necessary to make a further examination of the prisoner before he could give definite opinion concerning his mental and physical condition. Charlton, however, seems perfectly well.

Dispatches from the United States have hinted that Charlton's defence will include an allegation of insanity. The trial probably will go over until April.

THE ASSUAN DAM PROVED A BLESSING

It Saved the Cotton Crop of Egypt From Irretrievable Loss—Nile Very Low

(Special Correspondent.)

London, Aug. 31.—Lord Kitchener is still staying at Broome park, his seat near Canterbury, and is probably feeling very pleased with the latest news from Egypt.

Writing from Cairo, a correspondent remarks: "It was a pretty near thing for water out here this year, and without that extra bit on the Assuan dam it would have been a disastrous year. 'Just Kitchener's luck,' people say, that it should just be finished in the nick of time."

This is not over stating the case; but for the extension of the dam thirty per cent. of the entire cotton crop of Egypt, amounting in value to about £10,000,000, would have been irretrievably lost. As long ago as November it was fairly clear that the flood of the Nile would be low, and accordingly arrangements were made to fill the enlarged dam to the fullest capacity, and this was done, with the result that there has been rather more than double the amount of water for distribution than when the dam was in existence in its original form. The outlay on the dam has thus been more than justified in practically the first year of its existence, and as there has been some anxiety felt as to the outlook of the Egyptian cotton crop it may be well to make this point clear.

Fine weather, an unusually large number of exhibits from all parts of the province, including 166 entries of vegetables, which are to be on display for two days, and a horse race, more than any seen this year, and numerous other features all go to make the fair this year quite the biggest yet.

It lasts two days, one of the main events tomorrow being a ball game between Rosedale and Agassiz.

More than $700 in prizes will be contributed for the horse races.

ULSTER IS TO DEBATE ON VOTES FOR WOMEN

London, Sept. 12.—The draft of the new constitution which Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists, and his colleagues are preparing for the Ulster provisional government provides for votes for women. This announcement has been made in the form of a reply to the Women's Social and Political Union, which recently sent a letter to Sir Edward Carson practically demanding equal rights for women.

FRENCH GAME OF WAR COVERING 63 MILES

Castle Sarrazin, France, Sept. 12.—Except for thirty-three aeroplanes scouting over 63 miles of the rough country separating the northern and southern armies playing the French war game, there was little to be seen of the grand army manoeuvres, which began seriously yesterday.

The contending forces are the blue army under General Pau with its base at Agon, and the red army, under General Chomer, with its base at Toulouse.

It will be a couple of days before the infantry go into action.

CASCADE DOUBLE TRACK LINE NOW COMPLETED

Kamloops, Sept. 12.—Double-tracking of the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway between Mission Junction and Ruby creek for a distance of nearly forty miles has now been completed. There are now more than forty miles of track paralleled on the Cascade sub-division, which extends from Vancouver to North Bend.

Double-tracking operations on the Cascade were started in May, 1912, and the work has entailed the expenditure of more than $2,000,000.

CONSULATE CHANGES.

Vancouver, Sept. 12.—David F. Wilber, American consul-general here, has been nominated by President Wilson for Zurich, Switzerland. Robert T. Mansfield, consul-general at Zurich, will come to this city. Mr. Wilber was formerly a member of the New York assembly and has served in the consular service at Kobe, Barbadoes, Singapore and Halifax. Mr. Mansfield has served at Zanzibar, Valparaiso, Lucerne and Zurich.

CRUSHED BY ELEVATOR.

Seattle, Sept. 11.—R. R. George, for many years justice of the peace, was perhaps fatally injured at 9.40 o'clock last night when he fell thirty-five feet after being crushed between an elevator and the shaft in the Lyon building. He was taken to the city hospital suffering from a broken nose, a fractured jaw, two or three compound fractures of the left arm and a broken hip.

FORGERIES CHARGED AMOUNT TO $200,000

Real Estate Dealer's Victims Threaten Violence Should He Be Released From Custody.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 12.—Charged with forgeries that may total $200,000 and which left many of his victims penniless, James C. O'Connor, a real estate dealer, is in jail, while many of his former clients threaten personal violence should O'Connor be released on bail.

The forgeries, it is said, were discovered yesterday, when O'Connor's office was searched. He was arrested Wednesday night on a charge of grand larceny by John Metz, a switchman, who lost $1,500.

It is declared a search of the office revealed thousands of dollars in forged mortgage notes.

Bernard Burns, an aged and retired business man, yesterday sought work as a common laborer after losing $2,800, his entire fortune. The Catholic diocese of this district was a victim to the amount of $20,000.

MAYOR AND CITY CLERK.

The taxpayers of Victoria undoubtedly desire the maximum of efficiency at the minimum of cost not only in the city hall, but in all branches of the municipal service, and it is the duty of those entrusted with the discharge of the civic business to do all in their power to bring the service up to this ideal point of efficiency. But after reading the letter from the Mayor to the city clerk, in which old troubles are ventilated and some new ones brought out, it is doubtful whether there will be general agreement regarding the methods employed by the chief magistrate to secure the maximum of efficiency at the minimum of cost in the city hall. It is quite conceivable that as a consequence of the period of activity through which we have been passing during the past few years the staff of the city clerk has become unwieldy, but there is no way of reducing the staff to proportions in harmony with the duties to be performed except by chopping off its head? After all, surely some consideration should be given to the fact that the city clerk has served the city for twenty-five years faithfully and earnestly. It does seem that with a minimum of fact the Mayor might have accomplished the reforms desired and brought about the maximum of efficiency at the minimum of cost without stirring up a new very unedifying turmoil that is likely to follow a second suspension of the city clerk.

ENFORCE IT ALL.

The Chief Justice having decided that the old English laws relating to Sabbath observance are applicable to Vancouver Island, we may expect a movement for their "entire enforcement." Why not? What is the use of having laws if they are not to be enforced? The mere fact that they are three hundred years old—statutes with long white whiskers, so to speak—should be no justification for ignoring them. Occasionally our judges render decisions in the light of precedents just as ancient. We understand the police intend to enforce those provisions dealing with cigar and news stands and confectionary stores. If they are going to galvanize into operation the hoary old canons of Charles II. in a few particulars, manifestly they should go the entire route and resurrect the whole body.

How anomalous it would be to enforce those provisions forbidding the exposure for sale of chattels and merchandise and wink at the flagrant violation of the section which requires every person "to exercise himself on the Sabbath in the duties of piety and true religion!" Why should the unlucky vendor of cigars, tobacco and candies, be prosecuted under the statute, while the milkman who sells milk after nine o'clock, and the person who travels upon any boat or ferry, both of whom are prohibited from doing so by the same act, are allowed to escape? More than that, if we are going to enforce the law at all, it should be enforced in spirit as well as in the letter. In spirit it forbids travelling in any conveyance on the Sabbath. The fact that there were no steamboats, street cars, railways or automobiles in those brave days should not place them beyond the application of the act. The intention plainly was to prevent people from travelling except under extraordinary circumstances.

We should also have the stocks. If we have to go back to the days of Charles II. for our laws, we certainly should adopt the penalties for their violation. We suggest that the stocks be set up in our three parks and that no person be placed in them on the Sabbath. Our reason for suggesting this precaution is that we fear many people will violate the law in the hope of being put in the stocks during church hours on Sunday. We know this is a serious admission, but if we have made such little moral progress in three centuries, that the ordinances of Charles II. are still applicable, there is every reason to believe that we are a very wicked community. We trust also that the stocks will be architecturally in harmony with the surroundings. There should be nothing cheap or nasty about them, because it should be remembered that they will be adorned by some of our most prominent citizens, people accustomed to every luxury. They should be painted in the national colors and the old flag should wave over each. In this way the stocks will play their part in holding the empire together. After reading the provisions of the statute which now applies to Vancouver Island, we have come to the conclusion that historians have foully slandered that godly individual who ruled at Whitehall and who has been misnamed the "Merrie Monarch." When Macaulay depicted King Charles II. as a debauchee whose orgies disgraced Christendom, and when diarists like Pepys and Evelyn confided to their pages details of the depravity which existed at the palace, they must have been drawing on their jaundiced imaginations. There was no wickedness in a king who sanctioned this law in favor of Sabbath Observance, so perfect an instrument that in three hundred years we have not improved upon it. And how could he have ever been a "Merrie Monarch" after having read its list of prohibitions? But be that as it may, if the attorney-general is going to enforce the act at all he should go the whole route, blinds down, stocks and funeral atmosphere.

MAYOR GAYNOR.

The death of Mayor Gaynor removes a striking figure from the public life of the United States. As chief magistrate of the largest and wealthiest city of the New World, he filled a position of immense responsibility, involving the direction of a community whose annual expenditure exceeds that of the whole Dominion of Canada by nearly one hundred million a year. But it was the personality of the mayor more than the importance of the office that won for him so much prominence throughout the country. It overshadowed that of even the governor of the state and enrolled him foremost among the ranks of those with prospects of elevation to the White House. Mayor Gaynor entered the mayoralty sixteen years ago as a Democrat, with the support of Tammany. Like his predecessor, George B. McLellan, he was elected largely through the influence of that powerful organization, but, unlike the man he succeeded, he early showed that he was not as clay in the potter's hands. Sturdily independent, able and fearless, he proved himself to be mayor in fact as well as in name. He was not a conventional politician and had no patience with the diplomatic expedients to which public men so frequently resort to escape from a difficult situation. He did not subscribe to the Talleyrand dictum that language was given to men to enable them to conceal their thoughts. There never was any doubt where the mayor stood on any question. It mattered not to him whether the stand he took made him friends or enemies. When the Rosenthal murder gave rise to sweeping charges against the police force he stoutly maintained that this department was sound at heart and denounced the injustice of condemning the whole body because there were crooks in its ranks.

He was the avowed enemy of cant and humbug regardless of where it flourished. The sensational yellow press he abhorred and openly denounced, thereby incurring its formidable enmity. Tammany, found it could not control him; the other political organizations could not touch him, and they all were mightily surprised and grieved. He was unique and the mayoralty of New York is no place for a man who is unique along this line. So they no longer would have anything to do with him. But the mayor's fearless discharge of his duty as he conceived it without fear or favor had won him a higher constituency, the constituency of citizens who knew a man when they saw one and they announced their intention of renominating him for another term. Death, however, has intervened and New York has lost a really great man.

SOUND POLICY.

It is satisfactory to learn that the federal immigration authorities propose to restrict immigration from the United Kingdom to Canada to those who intend to settle on the land. The movement of industrial workers is to be discouraged more actively than has been done for several years. In this the department is to be commended. The Canadian labor market at the present time is sufficient for its needs; in fact, it is over supplied, and time will be required for an adjustment of the conditions. Nothing could do this country a greater injury than the thoughtless encouragement of immigration of people who have no reasonable prospects of work when they come here. The advocates of population at all costs, well-intentioned but impractical theorists that they are, overlook the fact that every man who suffers from lack of employment here is a bad advertisement for the country besides creating an unhealthy economic atmosphere.

OUR EMIGRATION.

It is surprising to learn that the emigration of residents of Canada to take up permanent residence in the United States exceeds 150,000 a year and may even reach 200,000. We have been hearing so much of the immigration from the republic that we have forgotten that thousands of people are passing in the other direction. This explains the rather disappointing character of the census returns. The yearly immigration figures for the preceding decade had been so large that it was freely predicted that the population of Canada would exceed eight millions. Instead it is under that figure. We had overlooked the outflow, and we should see to it that conditions in Canada are such as to prevent the stream from becoming larger.

Take, for instance, that much-discussed question, the cost of living. Already it is much higher in Canada than in the United States and the Wilson tariff bill is designed to make it still lower south of the line. Obviously steps must be taken by the government of Canada to meet that condition, because, other things being equal, people will prefer to live where the purchasing power of their money is greater. If the consumers of the United States are going to be given the opportunity of buying in a competitive market, the consumers of Canada will demand a similar privilege or they will not stay here. We do not think this aspect has influenced the emigration from Canada to the United States to any extent thus far, but it is going to count in the future. Whatever the cause, however, it is astonishing to learn that we are sending as many people across the line as the United States is sending to us.

NO "TAINTED" NEWS.

The Montreal Gazette takes issue with the Empire Press Union of Great Britain on the subject of "tainted" British news supplied to Canada through the United States. Our contemporary points out that this tainted news talk is a survival of conditions that, if they ever existed, do not now need to worry anybody. The Gazette adds: "The great news services of the United States, with which Canadian newspapers co-operate and on which they depend, to a greater or less extent, for their foreign despatches, have as their first purpose the securing of an accurate record of the facts in regard to events thought worthy of transatlantic transmission. They are usually simple records. When they deal with opinion, it is usually that of some British or European authority of weight, and the circumstances are set out so that all who read may understand. Those who regularly read the Canadian Press despatches in The Gazette will appreciate this; and the Canadian Press is in alliance with the Associated Press, which is the great United States news gatherer. The cry about tainted news, however, in this latest case, seems to be based less on want of knowledge of the facts than on a desire to establish a claim for a government subsidy for some new service. It is to be hoped the desire will not be gratified. Government subsidies are rarely justified, and even more rarely are they wholesome in their operation. They tend to make those who receive them depend for success on the public treasury rather than on their exertions to create business. And the newspapers of a country should be the last to seek such aid. If they have any purpose higher than that of making money for their proprietors, they will be weakened in the efforts to secure it by the reception of a government bounty.

We are surprised at a newspaper which professes to believe that the creation of a Canadian navy would lead to separation from the British Empire publishing the following dispatch from Sydney, Australia:

Speaking at a banquet given by the Chamber of Commerce to the British Parliamentary party last night, Admiral Sir George King-Hall of the British Navy, who will return shortly to England, said: "It is a great fallacy to suppose that the initiation of a Royal Australian Navy must weaken in time dissolve the connection between Great Britain and one of her most vigorous sons. Not so, it will have the reverse effect. If our Empire rulers have only ordinary wisdom and common sense. Where danger is, there will be found the Royal Australian Navy flying the same white ensign that was flown by Nelson at Trafalgar."

Possibly we shall have an explanation to the effect that what Australians can do and are doing Canadians shall be prohibited from doing because their loyalty is of an inferior grade compared with that of Australians.

Sir Thomas Lipton is a happy man. He says he is assured of another chance to life the America Cup and that the conditions will be fairer to his challenger than they ever have been before. The rival yachts this time will be real boats, not merely racing machines, although they will probably go through the water at a fair clip at that. There will consequently be some excitement along the water front of New York, and some little elsewhere also, about this time next year. It is satisfactory to learn that the American defenders, although not compelled by the conditions to do so, are building boats for the Canadian navy, and that the Colonist thinks governments can do nothing to remedy several of the undesirable conditions now prevailing in British Columbia, such, for example, as the heavy importation of farm products. It says individuals must get upon the land and supply the demand for agricultural products. But now that "the speculator has had his chance," surely governments might come to the assistance of individuals.

MOTHER'S EXCUSES.

Mother for me made excuses
When I was a little lad;
Found some reason for my conduct
When I had been very bad,
Blamed it on my recent illness
Or my nervousness, and told
Father to be lenient with me
Every time he had to scold.
And I knew as well as any Toughish, healthy lad of ten,
Mother really wasn't telling Truthful things to father then.
I knew I deserved the whipping,
Knew that I'd been very bad,
Knew that mother knew it also,
When she intervened with dad.
I knew that my recent illness
Hadn't anything to do
With the mischief I'd been up to,
And I knew that mother knew.
But remembering my fever
And my nervous temperament,
Father put away the shingle
And postponed the bad event.

Now his mother, when I threaten Punishment for this and that,
Calls to mind the dreary night hours
When beside his bed he sat,
Covers and tells me that he's nervous,
That's the reason he was bad,
And the boy and doing mother
Put it over on the dad.
Some day when he's grown as I am,
With a boy on mischief bent,
He will hear the time-worn story
Of the nervous temperament,
And remembering the shingle
That aside I always threw,
All I hope is that he'll let them
Put it over on him, too.

CANADIAN SPIRIT NEEDED.

Ottawa Citizen.
Then why not start now to create the Canadian spirit in the hearts of her own people? Why not find a Canadian soil a fitting place for pride of birth? Why regard any part of this broad earth as more sacred or more worthy of veneration than that which comprises Canada? Other nations have their great past. Canada has its great future. Why be more proud of greatness behind than of greatness ahead?
The time has come when Canada must come to realization of herself, and when every Canadian must find pride and loyalty and inspiration in the fact that he is Canadian, and if Canadian born, so much the better. Perhaps the best thing to do now would be to organize a society of the Canadian born.

CAN'T IMAGINE THIS.

There may be germs in kissing, but most people are from Missouri and will never believe until they see their own then they will pronounce them harmless. We might as well have a germ-ridden world as an unkind world. Just think of the wealth of unkind kisses there are waiting on roscod lip to be gently but lovingly and lovingly plucked. Then just imagine if you can, a virile, vigorous, young generation of Canadians allowing the crop to go to waste.

Through Panama Canal—When the St. John's branch of the Woman's Auxiliary to Missions met for the first time after the holidays it was decided that the annual donation party tea and sale would be held on October 7, when part of the entertainment would be an imaginary trip through the Panama canal. Music will also form part of the programme. Letters of thanks from several missions to which help had been sent were read at the meeting.

Relatives Missing—The police are in receipt of another batch of requests for information about people who are missing in this part of the world. John Jagger came West from Ottawa early in the year and on March 22 his family heard from him that he would be home in two weeks. He has never arrived at 215 Cathcart street in that city, nor has he written again, and his wife is naturally very anxious about him, as well as in financial straits. Edwin James Reid is supposed to have been lost in the wreck of the State of California and his relatives in Centerville, Ont., are desirous to hear from anyone who can give any information about him, as to whether he was on that steamer at the time. F. H. Clements has not been heard of by his friends for eight years and is sought by his sister, Mrs. Fred Kruger.

Vancouver Girls Missing—Two Vancouver girls have been missing from their homes since Friday last and the Victoria police have been asked to have a look for them. Both are sixteen years of age and they are believed to have taken the night boat for this city. Eva Rowe is a tall girl for her years, five feet eight inches, is of medium dark complexion and hair, and wears a blue dress with white embroidery, white hat trimmed with black velvet, brown boots and a raincoat. Bella Hughes is medium height and rather stout, fair hair and complexion, and blue eyes, and has on a navy blue hat and long fawn raincoat.

New Method Interests—According to the G. Sullivan, chief engineer of the Western lines of the Canadian Pacific railway, work on the boring of the "pioneer" Rogers Pass tunnel is being actively prosecuted. He states that 125 feet of the drift has already been scooped out. The C. P. R. is piercing the mountain with a tunnel 22 feet by 30 feet and five miles long. The contractors are adopting a new method. The "pioneer" tunnel is being eagerly watched by engineering experts as it runs parallel to the main bore and work will be pressed by means of cross-cut borings. A very large force of men is engaged at the scene of the operations and camps have been established on each side of the mountain. Steam shovels are also being used to grade the approach to the western portals below Glacier station. Mr. Sullivan leaves for the East again tomorrow.

CHURCH UNION IN CHINA

Chinese Dialect Mather Church's De-nominational Differences and May Abandon Them.

That church union may receive its first practical experiment among the Chinese Christians is evident from the remarks of Rev. Charles Thomson, of Hwangyen, Chikang China, who is in Victoria with his wife and son after 20 years as a missionary in the above named community. The Chinese Christians, he said, send about two-thirds of the representation to the federation convention and take a leading part in the discussions. They dislike the denominational distinctions of the mother church, without feeling in any way ungrateful to the mission boards which sent them the gospel, and Mr. Thomson expects to see in a very few years an actual federation of the Chinese Christians of all denominations. The missionaries, he says, are at heart glad to see this tendency growing, as yet, the Chinese have developed no differences of their own.

Mr. Thomson's station, under the China Inland Mission at Hwangyen, is in what is known as a rather old portion of China. It is about 200 miles south of Shanghai and there is not another foreigner within 20 miles of the place where Mr. Thomson is stationed. There are about 500 Christian Chinese in the population of 400,000, although in the Chinese schools and colleges are found many people who are familiar with Christianity and favorable to it, who make no profession of believing its doctrines.

This is the first time in eight and one-half years that Mr. Thomson has been away from his work and the occasion of his visit here was to put his son into the University of British Columbia, concerning which he had been reading in the newspapers. He was disappointed to find, however, that the university does not open until 1914, and is making other provision for his son's education in the meantime.

Band-Sergeant R. Rowland is granted leave of absence from the 7th to the 21st inst. inclusive.

There will be rifle practice at the Clover Point range next Saturday afternoon, commencing at 1.30 o'clock. Captain R. V. Harvey is detailed as range officer.

P. E. Villiers, Capt. and Act. Adj. 88th Regt. Victoria Fusiliers.

May Speak September 23.—It is expected that Dr. Derby, secretary of the Peace Society of England, will come directly to the coast from Winnipeg, working his way back East again by stages. Rev. W. Stevenson, of this city, who is in Vancouver helping to make the arrangements, states that Dr. Derby will probably speak before the Victoria Canadian Club on September 23.

Father Dies in Montreal.—Word has been received from Montreal of the death there of William Small, who had been ill for two months. He was a pioneer resident of the great eastern city and is survived by his widow, two daughters and five sons. Walter Small, who is so well known to Victorians as a hockey player, is a son of the deceased.

New Method Interests.—According to the G. Sullivan, chief engineer of the Western lines of the Canadian Pacific railway, work on the boring of the "pioneer" Rogers Pass tunnel is being actively prosecuted. He states that 125 feet of the drift has already been scooped out. The C. P. R. is piercing the mountain with a tunnel 22 feet by 30 feet and five miles long. The contractors are adopting a new method. The "pioneer" tunnel is being eagerly watched by engineering experts as it runs parallel to the main bore and work will be pressed by means of cross-cut borings. A very large force of men is engaged at the scene of the operations and camps have been established on each side of the mountain. Steam shovels are also being used to grade the approach to the western portals below Glacier station. Mr. Sullivan leaves for the East again tomorrow.

WHO GIVES YOU THE POOREST SERVICE?

It is the merchant who has the brightest store, the most attractive things to sell you, a polite and intelligent sales force, to serve you and an all-round genial, home-like, welcome atmosphere awaiting you in his shop—and then tells you about it in his advertising?

Is it from that kind of merchant that you receive poor service? It is not probable.

The chances are ten to one that the poorest service and the least satisfaction comes from the shop where business is done under antiquated conditions; where the merchandise is badly chosen and badly displayed; where salespeople are not well-informed and courteous and obliging; and where the merchant either has nothing much of interest to advertise or else "doesn't believe in advertising."

There MAY be exceptions but, if so, they indicate the rule. The best service comes from the business that has so much confidence in its methods and its merchandise that it is a part of its splendid service to tell you about it.

Faithful ad-vertisers seldom go to the wrong store.

MISS FELTON IN "GREEN STOCKINGS"

The philosophy of clothes in connection with feminine moods is one of paramount interest to all women, and one requiring consummate understanding on the part of an actress. Notwithstanding the fact that a variety of her repertoire Miss Felton seeks to give each role the very latest in dress. In her constant search for the "dernier cri" she has come to the conclusion that no better gowns can be secured than here in Victoria. In her role of Celia in "Green Stockings" the costumes worn are importations by Finch & Finch. The first is a carriage-gown in the new mahogany shade, with blends of Oriental colorings, a gorgeous harmony of lines and shades. With this are worn a black picture hat with mahogany plumes and a magnificent set of seal skin. The furs are an importation by Finch & Finch from Berlin. The stole is of unusual interest in design, evolved along draped lines, while the huge muff completes an effect of rare beauty. Later Miss Felton appears in an evening gown which is a delight to behold, pink satin charmeuse with over drapes of rose net embroidered with a flashing design in silver and crystal.

Just at this time when fall openings are under way Miss Felton's gowns are the subject of more than ordinary interest.

"Green Stockings" will be repeated this evening and Saturday with a special Saturday matinee.

COMMISSION TO INQUIRE

Judge Howay to Inquire Into Lease of North Pacific Lumber Company; Gazette Items.

The appointment of a provincial commission for the purpose of inquiring into all matters involved in connection with the timber lease held by the North Pacific Lumber Company, New Westminster and the claims of all persons who have entered upon the lands embraced in the said lease, is announced in this week's Gazette. Under the "Public Inquiries Act" His Honor Judge Howay will take up the commission.

He will hold his first sitting at the court house, New Westminster, on Monday, September 15, at 11 o'clock at which all persons interested are to be present.

The appointment of three new notaries public is gazetted. They are: Alfred H. Lomas, of Cowichan Lake, John Daniel McPhee, of Vancouver, and James Mowat, of Enderby.

Alderman Henry McKenzie, of Nanaimo has been appointed a member of the board of license commissioners in that city.

Gerald H. Jennings, of Vancouver, has been made a deputy game warden of the province.

One cancellation of appointment and resignation are noted in this week's issue. The former is in the case of Walter Field, Laidlaw, as justice of the peace of Laidlaw and the latter in the case of H. D. Payne, of Saturna, who has resigned his post as provincial deputy game warden.

The incorporation of no fewer than seven new companies with headquarters in the city of Victoria during this week would seem to denote that commercial enterprise is picking up in this city.

The incorporation of the Nelson Ben-neck Construction Company (as noted in the Gazette, with a capital of ten thousand dollars, divided into ten thousand shares, brings into the local field another firm of contractors for their incorporation includes as an object,

"To contract for and construct buildings or other structures and excavations."

To acquire fishing, canning and curing rights and to carry on the business of fishing, canning and curing and manufacturing fertilizer, fish oil and

DAY OF GREAT OCEAN LINERS MAY BE OVER

Atlantic Leviathans Have Been Source of Great Expense to Owners; No More Ordered

It begins to appear as though the day of the gigantic ocean liner is over. It can truthfully be said that none of the huge floating palaces as yet have been found to be a success, with probably the sole exception of the Mauretania, of the Cunard fleet. The companies which operate these great vessels have found them to be a source of great expense. One great proof that the day of the 800-foot ship is almost a thing of the past is the fact that none of the Atlantic steamship companies have placed any further orders for Olympics or Imperators.

If one glances over the heavy bills for repair work which have been carried out on the leviathans now afloat, he will readily see where the operating of these ships is not at all profitable. The Cunard company started the Lusitania and later the Mauretania. While these two marvellous ships have been outgrown by other liners, they still can steam several knots faster than any of the latest arts of man. For several years these ships operated successfully between Liverpool and New York, but now the company is beginning to feel the burden of expense. The Lusitania has been out of service for about six months, having extensive alterations and repairs made, which together with the loss of business has cost the Cunard people close on to $1,000,000.

Olympic Started Trouble. The Olympic, of the White Star fleet, started the trouble which seems to pursue this small fleet of gigantic liners. When leaving Southampton for New York the great ship collided with the British cruiser Hawke and was severely damaged. A huge, gaping hole was torn in her bows and she had to be taken to Belfast and dry-docked for repairs, which cost a great deal of money. Then came the lamentable fate of the Titanic, also of the White Star fleet, which foundered after striking an iceberg while on her maiden trip across the Atlantic. She took nearly 1,500 people to their death. Following the loss of the Titanic the officials of the White Star line decided to withdraw the Olympic from service and practically rebuild her. On the way north she was constructed like the Titanic, but in bill was something like $1,000,000.

In order to take the lead in the race for supremacy the Hamburg-American Company placed an order for the building of the Imperator. There has been a "jinx" following in her wake from the time she left the shipyard. When proceeding down the Elbe river, the leviathan ran aground and her maiden trip to New York had to be postponed as a result. On her last visit to the eastern metropolis a bad fire broke out on board the Imperator, and before it had been extinguished the life of the second officer had been snuffed out and 2,000,000 gallons of water pumped against her, damaging many of her cargo fixtures. Now comes a dispatch from Berlin stating that the ship will be withdrawn from the Atlantic service in October, to be partially rebuilt. Her boilers have proven deficient and the boiler room will be reconstructed. She will also be equipped with oil-burners. The luxurious millionaire's saloon have been found unprofitable and will be replaced by a larger number of smaller staterooms. This change will involve great expense as well as a heavy loss of business.

When the Titanic disaster occurred the White Star people at once ordered extensive changes to be made in the hull of the gigantic Aquatania, which was building on the Clyde to regain for the White Star line the blue ribbon. This entailed an increase in the contract price, and is also delaying the delivery of the vessel.

For the present at all events the steamship companies seem to be through with the great ships. Designing has not yet reached that point when these vessels can be called a success. Further experiments will be necessary. The ships are so large and the step from the construction of the smaller Atlantic boats to those was so high that the designers have not yet perfected an ocean leviathan.

SEVERE WEATHER OFF RIVER DELAYS LINER

Colusa Met Heavy Gale When Abreast of Columbia; Carried Passengers to Canal Zone

Running into a heavy gale from the northeast off the Columbia river, the Grace liner Colusa, Capt. Minister, was delayed in reaching Victoria and it was not until 8:45 o'clock this morning that she berthed from Mexican points. The steamship cleared from San Francisco on the last leg of the voyage on Tuesday morning last, one day later than was originally reported here. The Colusa was three days making the run, which she should have completed in about 65 hours.

Officers of the Grace liner say that the weather was very severe off the coast. Soon after getting off the Golden Gate the vessel was buffeted by heavy gales of wind, but it was not until she was off the Columbia that she received the worst dusting. The vessel was very light, having only about 1,500 tons of freight on board, and consequently she was a playing for the elements. The great sea was lifted her easily and she was rolling and pitching like a drunken seaman.

Visit to Panama. The Colusa carried a large crowd of San Francisco business men to Balboa to allow them to view the famous Panama canal. They had several days in the canal zone and crossed the Isthmus, viewing every scene of interest on the great ditch. On the way north the Colusa called in at Salina Cruz, and loaded about 8,000 tons of freight which had been shipped on the Tehuantepec railroad from Vera Cruz. A number of American refugees from the disturbed parts of Mexico came north to San Francisco on the steamship.

At this port the Colusa is discharging 600 tons of general merchandise and she will clear for Vancouver late in the afternoon. For the mainland she has about 1,000 tons.

A number of passengers came north from San Francisco on the Colusa and disembarked here. The Colusa has passenger accommodation for 30 saloon travellers and this space is always sold out at San Francisco for the run north.

UMATILLA IN BAD WEATHER.

Heavy weather off the coast has delayed the Pacific Coast steamship Umatilla in making port. She arrived here at 1:30 o'clock to-day from San Francisco after a stormy voyage. The Umatilla was nearly 12 hours late. She met several exceptionally heavy gales. At this port the Umatilla is discharging 80 tons of freight.

TUG EVA STILL ASHORE.

Vancouver, Sept. 12.—Word reached here to-day that the first attempt to raise the tug Eva failed. The Eva is ashore on Bowen Island and the tug Centre Star, with salvage appliances, is on the scene. The Eva will be floated with the aid of scows. Another effort is being made.

ALTA ARRIVING HERE TO-NIGHT FOR LUMBER

Barquentine Being Towed From Vancouver by Lorne Inside in Morning

Late this evening the American barquentine Alta, Capt. Thonagel, will arrive off here in tow of the tug Lorne. It is more than likely that the sailer will drop anchor in the Royal Roads and wait until to-morrow morning before being brought inside the harbor mouth. A wire from Vancouver this morning stated that the Alta left there at 9:30 o'clock, and the Lorne should be off Victoria with her about 8 o'clock this evening.

The barquentine is to load 1,500,000 feet of lumber at the Canadian-Puget Sound Lumber Mills in the upper harbor and as the channel is rather a tortuous one it is not likely that the task of bringing the ship in will be essayed until daylight. The Alta is not in any hurry to get inside as the date set for her to go on loading is Monday next. She will probably have her lumber cargo all stowed aboard in about three weeks or a month's time. The lumber is for Sydney, N. S. W.

The Alta brought a cargo of coal to Vancouver from Newcastle, N. S. W., and after discharging there she went on the B. C. Marine ways and had her hull scraped and painted.

Biscay Ready for Sea. The British full-rigged ship Bay of Biscay, Captain Fletcher Young, finished loading her cargo of lumber for Greenock at the Hastings Mill this morning and she will go to sea on Sunday. The vessel has 1,745,000 feet of lumber. On her last voyage from Vancouver on August 26, 1911, the Bay of Biscay carried 1,745,750 feet. She has been at the mainland port since July 15, when she arrived from Caliao. The tug Lorne will return to the Terminal City after berthing the Alta to place a hawser aboard the Bay of Biscay.

There are few other sailing ships now on berth in British Columbia or Puget Sound ports taking lumber cargoes.

SPANISH MAIN SHIP LOST.

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 12.—The schooner Agnes Donahoe, famous as a sailer of the Spanish Main, is a total wreck on the shores of Digby Gap. In a heavy storm on Monday the schooner brick-laden from the Nova Scotia Clay Works, of Annapolis, and bound for St. John, sprung a leak, and became unmanageable. She is piled up on the shore not far from the light house. Her crew of seven men were saved by the prompt aid rendered them by the life saving station. The vessel broke in two, and with her cargo is a total loss. Ship and cargo were insured.

GLENDEN NEXT SUGAR SHIP.

Vancouver, Sept. 12.—The next sugar steamer to come to Vancouver will be the British steamer Glenden, which is now on passage from Cuba and should arrive early in October. The Glenden sailed from Matanzas on July 31 and was last reported from St. Lucia on August 7.

SHEARWATER BACK IN PORT.

Returning from her regular gun practice at Comox, H. M. S. Shearwater, Commander Walters, took up her old moorings yesterday. The Albatross, Commander Brooker, is expected here from her cruise in Behring Sea very shortly.

These officers have gained much distinction on board the C. P. R. Skagway steamer for the manner in which they entertain all the passengers who travel with them. Reading from left to right the officers are as follows: Front row—Second Engineer Campbell, Chief Officer Alex. Thompson, Capt. Frank Campbell, Second Officer Frank Goss, and Wireless Operator Weeks. Back row—Chief Engineer Alexander, Fourth Engineer Chas. Wilson, First Officer Thos. Cliff, Third Engineer Douglas.

CANNOT ACCOUNT FOR PREVAILING WEATHER

Capt. Shadforth, of Gray, Reports Peculiar Conditions for This Season of Year

Sailing men are at a loss to account for the peculiar weather conditions which have been prevailing on this coast for the past few weeks. Continuous southeast gales, with thunderstorms, hail squalls and lightning have been reported by the masters of all vessels which have come into port recently. The weather is completely different from that which has generally visited this part of the country at this season of the year.

Capt. Shadforth, master of the steamer Gray, of the Canadian North Pacific Fisheries, Ltd., which returned to port last night after a trip to the Queen Charlotte Islands, the west coast, says that the weather is totally different from anything he has ever seen on this coast at this season of the year. He saw more lightning during one week of the trip than in the whole seven years he has been navigating in British Columbia waters.

Some Very Bad Nights. The Gray was absent from port ten days, and Capt. Shadforth says that the weather was bad throughout the trip. In Hecate Strait some very bad nights were put in. The glass was low. The southeast winds literally whistled about the ship. The sea was tremendous, and the Gray was pitching about like a cork. The lightning flashed and the thunder roared, and the heavy hail squalls fell frequently. Coming south the Gray had the worst weather she had to buck into the southeast. The waves were continually awash.

The reason for the vast amount of lightning which has been flashing across the skies cannot be explained. Old-time masters do not recall when the British Columbia waters were visited with such brilliant electrical displays as of late. The thunderstorms have been roaring incessantly. The lengthy period of southerly is something practically unknown at this season of the year.

The Gray brought in a full cargo of whale oil from the four whaling stations at Agassiz, Port Hardy, Ross Harbor and Naden Harbor.

OLYMPIC CARRIES RECORD SALOON PASSENGER LIST

Word was received yesterday that the great White Star liner Olympic brought 2,270 passengers to New York from Europe. She reached the Hudson river on Wednesday.

This is the greatest number of passengers ever brought by a White Star liner, and the list was divided into 250 first, 615 second and 1,000 third class passengers. The 750 in the first cabin was the greatest number of first class passengers ever carried by any vessel crossing the Atlantic. In addition to passengers, the Olympic had officers and crew numbering 890.

Approximately $250,000 was paid in fares by those who traveled by the Olympic, which occupied six days on the voyage from Southampton. The tremendous rush in ordinary transatlantic travel which has ever set in at this time of year. Many persons paid premiums to secure their berths, and a large number who wished to travel in superior accommodation had to be satisfied with quarters in the third cabin.

FIRST FISHERY CRUISER STARTS ON VOYAGE HERE

The Malaspina, the first of the two fisheries protection cruisers built by the Dublin Dock Yard Company for the Canadian government, for service on this coast, sailed Wednesday from Greenock, Scotland, for this port. She will arrive here about the end of November. The second cruiser is to be delivered at Esquimaut in February next.

HEAVY LUMBER SHIPMENT.

Astoria, Ore., Sept. 12.—During August thirty-one vessels loaded lumber at the mills in Astoria customs district and took combined cargoes amounting to 24,550,355 feet. During the same period the mills in the Portland district shipped by vessels 11,714,000 feet of lumber to domestic ports and 18,212,719 feet foreign, making a grand total of 54,277,318 feet.

AGAINST SECRET WORK.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12.—Representative Anderson, Republican, of Minnesota, followed up his sensational resignation last night from the ways and means committee by introducing to-day a resolution to have a committee of nine investigate and reform the legislative practices of the House. He announced his action was the beginning of a campaign against the secret caucus and secret committee work.

EIGHT ARRESTS MADE.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Eight men are under arrest in connection with the robbery from Warrington McAvoy, 19-year-old messenger for the Garfield Park State Savings Bank yesterday of a satchel containing $4,000 and $10,000 in cheques. The suspects will be inspected by McAvoy, who will attempt to identify his assailants.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT HERE.

Dr. Wesbrook Had Long Conference With Minister This Morning.

Dr. F. F. Wesbrook, president of the University of British Columbia, arrived in town this morning on the midnight boat from Vancouver and had a long conference with Hon. Dr. Young, minister of education, during which university matters were fully discussed. The minister stated this afternoon that the conference had merely been on general topics and that no definite results had been arrived at.

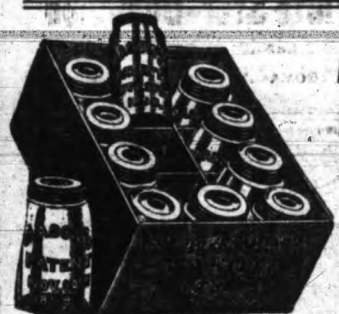

It is not unlikely that the question of selecting deans of faculties will be proceeded with during the present visit of the president, and Dr. Wesbrook will also meet the board of governors when he crosses over to Vancouver again.

COAST HOCKEY MAGNATES SCORE

SWEEEPING VICTORY OVER N. H. A.

Patrick Brothers Will Arrive in Victoria Sunday; Victoria's Prospects; After 'Peg' Amateurs.

Bringing with them the contracts of Newey Lalonde, Art. Throp and Harry Neighbors, three of the greatest stars in the National Hockey Association last year, as well as contracts from half a dozen youngsters, Frank and Lester Patrick will reach the coast tomorrow after a month's sojourn in the east. They accomplished what they went east for, a National Hockey Commission, and more than that, they brought back with them a trio of the finest ice hockey stars in the game today. They have secured a sweeping victory in their demands upon the eastern association and while the N. H. A. is protected from future raids by the Patrick brothers, the Coast League maintains the upper hand and will be able to draft three stars every year from the N. H. A.

Victoria Prospects.

Lester Patrick will reach Victoria Sunday afternoon, and until then, Victorians must wait for definite news as to the probable capital city settlement for the coming season. Manager Patrick spent a few days in Winnipeg, during which he had a long interview with Tommy Dunderdale. The latter will play in Victoria this season or be suspended, according to the rules of the hockey commission. At Winnipeg the coast magnates endeavored to secure the signature of a number of 'Peg' amateurs, but according to reports were unsuccessful. Of the Victoria team there are at present living in Victoria, Robbie Howe, Skinner, Bayliss, Walter Lindsay will again guard the nets with Bob Genge a certainty for the forward line. Goldie Producers has been sold to Quebec and Victoria will get either Lalonde, Neighbors or Throp. Lester would like to secure Lalonde, but Vancouver has former claims upon French-Canadian and he will probably go to the Terminal City.

An agreement was reached by the teams of the National Hockey Association for a salary schedule, which means that there will be no contract jumping in eastern hockey circles this year. The Patrick brothers have arranged under the new management for Lalonde, of Canadians; Throp, of Tecumseh, and Neighbors, of Toronto, to play in the west. They have also offered contracts to Anderson and Dubeau, of Renfrew, but so far these latter two have not signed. The three men they secure by arrangement from the N. H. A. are all stars, and Lalonde is, of course, well-known on the coast. The Patricks made an effort to land Harry Stuart, the Monarch goalkeeper, and Del Irvine, the crack coverpoint of the same club. They were also after Billy Mackenzie and Bill Currie, from the champion Winnipeg, and are in hopes of landing Harry Mackenzie, the speedy young Kenora boy.

Players Kick.

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—Officials of the Ottawa hockey club are well satisfied with the peace terms agreed upon between the Patricks and the N. H. A., but the players themselves predict another battle before they succumb to the new rules, which they claim make them slaves to the National and British Columbia leagues. Percy Lesieur and other local puck-chasers, maintain that the new regulations exceed the most stringent baseball commands ever drawn up. They say that there will be an outlaw league, and that they will not stand for salary cuts or compulsory change of residence during the winter as the case may be.

Another conference will be held next week to decide whether to adopt the six or seven-man game.

BARHAM TWIRLED

BEES TO VICTORY

Bees Took Eleven Inning Game From Tacoma 3 to 2; Young Slab Artist Starred

Tacoma, Sept. 12.—McGinnity's Tigers could do nothing with the wonderful twirling of Ruben Barham, the sensational Victoria youngster, and the Bees got to Uncle Dave Kraft in the eleventh for the hit that paved the way to the winning run. True, the Bees counted their third tally on an error by Salsburg, the new Tacoma shortstop, but that just avens the count for Tuesday's game when Alberta's wild heave allowed Tacoma to put over the winning run. Yesterday's combat was a pitcher's battle from the start, with Barham having the edge all the way. The first brace of Tacoma, counters, was registered on Victoria miscues, while solid hitting gave the Bees two runs in the sixth. The score was two-all at the end of the ninth, and Victoria counted one in the eleventh, Barham holding the Tigers helpless in this stanza.

Swain Hits Bull.

It was a brilliant showing for the Victoria slab artist who heaved in big league style, Barham had everything and fanned twelve of the Tacoma club, also belting out a single in the sixth that enabled the Bees to tie the score. His control was almost perfect. He walked but one man, while but three chances were offered the Victoria outfield. Kraft allowed but seven hits, but was lucky to hold the Bees for ten innings. Swain had two doubles and a triple that went for nothing, hitting the bull in deep centre field in the ninth, with an eye able to bring him home. For this mighty clout Swain gets $50, the second time that he has earned this premium this year. It is the first time that the Bees have struck in Tacoma by a batted ball. Salsburg and Shea started in the field, the latter blocking Mullen off at the plate in the third when he attempted to steal home with Barham holding the ball. He handled sixteen chances without a skip, while Delmas took care of seven chances.

RUGBY CHANGES

Fifth Regiment Will Replace Oak Bay in Senior Division; Bays Elect officers

Prospects now point to a five-club senior rugby league for the capital. It is now practically certain that Oak Bay will not enter a club in the Victoria Union, and at a meeting of the Fifth Regiment last night, the red coats unanimously decided to enter a team in the senior series. The Law Students, Victoria Welsh, James Bay and Wanderer clubs are assured, and with the Fifth Regiment also in line, indications point to a five-club league for the annual meeting which will be held Monday night at the Balmoral hotel.

James Bay will benefit by the retirement of the Oak Bay club, as a number of last year's Oaks have signified their intention of throwing in their lot with the James Bay squad. The Bays held their annual meeting at the club house last night, and the gathering was a very enthusiastic one. Bob McInnes, the former Oak Bay secretary, was chosen for that office by the Bays, while Billy Newcombe will again head the Rugby squad. C. E. Stralder was elected vice-captain. Committee: Gordon, Heinekey and Al. Jeffs.

Over two score rugby players have signed with the Fifth Regiment club, and there is no doubt but that the soldiers will be heard from in the coming series for the Barnard cup. Practices will be called shortly and Capt. Heinekey looks for a big season. The officers: Chairman, Lieut. C. W. Clark; secretary-treasurer, Corporal Lowell; captain, Gunner Heinekey (last season's Victoria captain); committed, Sergt. W. Kroeger, Gunner G. Campbell.

MAPLE LEAF IV. RETAINS TROPHY

London, Sept. 12.—The Maple Leaf IV, by winning two of the three races in the series, retains for Great Britain the trophy which she won on Huntington Bay, L. I., last year.

Ankledeep, an American representative, owned by Count Casimir Mankowski of Lake George, was the second boat to cross the finishing line to-day. H. Hollingworth's Crusader, a British entry, was third.

The finish of the course of 22.4 nautical miles was: Maple Leaf IV, 49:19 2-5; Ankledeep, 43:25; Crusader, 46:30 2-5.

PROMOTERS STATE RITCHIE "RAN OUT"

Vancouver, Sept. 12.—Willie Ritchie will have a chance to make $5,000 by proving the statements credited to him in the San Francisco dispatch in which he is said to have declared that the reason he called off the bout with Welsh was because the promoters had repudiated his agreement and did not want to go through with the battle because they had been compelled to close the race meeting a week ahead of schedule time.

Chet McIntyre announced this morning that the syndicate promoting the mill was willing to deposit $5,000 in cash with James Woods, manager of the St. Francis hotel in San Francisco, providing Willie Ritchie would do the same, and leave it to that gentleman to decide on the evidence submitted whether the promoters or Ritchie "ran out," the total stake to go to the party which, Woods, as referee, should declare was in the right. That would seem to indicate the local promoters know where they stand, and it will also give Ritchie a chance not only to clear himself but to make some easy money by doing so, that is, if he can.

AS SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

Victoria should win the series from Tacoma. . . . Two doubles and a triple was a pretty fair day's work for Swain.

Even Danny Shea came through with a brace of two-baggers.

McGinnity tried out a new shortstop, and he promptly booted the game away.

Portland has taken three straights from the Beavers, and now has a chance for the pennant.

Hynes surely heaved a grand article of bass for the Pippins, allowing but two hits.

Barham has lost but one game this season, and that was his first start at Vancouver.

Harry Meek may be let go for the balance of the season because of his irregular leg.

Manager Delmas is handling the team in a manner that certainly reflects credit upon the former Oakland short stop.

Bob Brown will have to shake up that lineup of his, for he will not take a game from the Colts.

Seattle took another from Spokane, and Mike Lynch's club is falling farther into the cellar.

Tom Fitzgerald may draw the blue envelope one of these days, as Delmas figures his young twirlers are good enough.

McGorry allowed but three hits yesterday, yet the Tillikums were able to pull out a win.

Barham struck out an even dozen yesterday, and issued two passes, showing that the youngster outpitched Uncle Dave Kraft.

Who said that Swain could not hit a southpaw? He had three ringing drives yesterday afternoon.

Alva Gipe will be retained by Seattle for his pinch hitting ability, while Meek will do likewise for the Bees.

Charlie Brooks is playing a nice fielding game at first base and looks to have bolstered up the infield.

WILL SELECT TEAM JUST BEFORE MATCH

Tickets are now on sale for the matches which the Australian cricket-ers will play here on September 25 against the Cowichan team, and for the games on September 26 and 27, against the British Columbia Colts. Play will start at 10:30 each morning and the tickets will admit the purchaser to the reserved enclosure, together with the chairs that will be provided. Quite a number of communications have been received from boys desirous of making the Colts team, but the committee will not announce the final selection until a few days before the match.

A practice game will be arranged a week from Saturday, and if possible the committee will select several representatives from the public schools of the city and other young clubs throughout the city.

YATES' RINK WINS

J. Yates' rink won the Clan McKenna cup at the Beacon Hill green yesterday afternoon, with W. Oliphant's rink, the score being 21 to 16. The rinks were composed only of three men, as follows: J. Yates, T. S' Burgess, and E. H. Ling, and Messrs. W. Oliphant, F. Robertson, and Dawson.

The Shortt, Hill & Duncan cup games, now in the semi-final stage, will be played on Saturday.

SCORER SCORES

London, Sept. 12.—The following football games were played yesterday: (Second division). Leicester Fosse 5; Notts Forest 1. (Southern league). Coventry 2; Gillingham 3.

The Thistle football club is to hold a practice against a picked side at Beacon Hill Saturday at 2:30. All Thistle players are expected to turn out.

EARL GREY AND HIS HUNTING ADVENTURES

He Was Once Lost in This Province; the Tragedy in Achnacarry Forest

Earl Grey, the late Governor-General of Canada, has had more than his share of adventures at home and in the dominions, says the Glasgow News. While hunting in British Columbia on one occasion, he got separated from his party, with the result that he became exhausted, and gave up hope of finding a way out of the dense and uninhabited forest. In the darkness he had the further misfortune to fall on the edge of a precipice, by which he slightly injured himself. Several search parties were sent out, and at last Lord Grey was discovered, in such a condition that he was only able to wait for a possible rescue. But that hunting episode was not quite so harrowing as an adventure experienced while deer-stalking in Scotland. Doubtless in his long weary wait in the woods in British Columbia, the memorable night of 17th-18th September, 1886, when he sat by the dead body of his friend in Achnacarry Forest, was vividly recalled. The Earl of Dalkeith (writes "Gillie") the eldest son of the Duke of Buccleuch, and Earl Grey, then Mr. Albert Grey, went deer-stalking on the morning of the 17th September. Taking a steam launch to the head of Loch Arkalg, the sportsmen separated there, Lord Dalkeith, with a stalker and two gillies, making for Fraoch Mhor, while Mr. Grey went to the north side of the loch. Lord Dalkeith had no luck for a considerable time, though a few stags were seen. Between 5 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, however, three stags were stalked, and at a distance of thirty yards Lord Dalkeith fired at one, evidently wounding it. It bolted out of sight, so he reloaded and ran after it, down hill, the ground being very steep.

With the rifle in his right hand he slipped about 35 yards, on a green patch with such an impetus that he was sent on to the bare rock below. The rifle had doubtless struck the rock and an explosion was heard. On the stalker hurrying up, he found Lord Dalkeith in a half-sitting posture, with a terrible wound, shot through the left arm a little below the shoulder. Mr. Grey was at once sent for, but the unfortunate sportsman died at 7:10 p. m. before his arrival. The party remained by the body till morning, for owing to the precarious nature of the ground and the darkness no movement could be made till daylight. The stag was afterwards found, dead, about 200 yards from the firing point.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

The Right Hon. Herbert Henry Asquith, prime minister of Great Britain, will celebrate his sixty-first birthday to-day. It is generally predicted that the statesman will soon find the career of office, the trials of leadership and the heaving of the suffragettes too great a burden for one of his years, and will retire to the easy solace of the House of Lords. Life has held many terrors for Mr. Asquith since the unending attention of the bashful housewives led by the untiring Emmeline. Aside from the troubles inflicted by the belligerent feminists, Mr. Asquith has had to bring to bear unusual qualities of tact, diplomacy, caution and action in order to handle the warping elements in the Liberal-Labor-Irish alliance.

At present, Mr. Asquith is still a youth, as compared with British prime ministers of the past. Gladstone was in his eighty-third year when, for the fourth time, he assumed the office of premier. Lord Palmerston was seventy when he assumed the office, and was eighty-one when he retired. Disraeli, Campbell-Bannerman and Lord Grey all assumed the cares of state when well past Mr. Asquith's present age.

Mr. Asquith was born in Yorkshire, September 12, 1852. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford, and became a barrister at twenty-four. The parliamentary career began in 1885, when he was elected from East Fife. He entered the government in 1892 as secretary of state for home department, and was chancellor of the exchequer from 1905 until his assumption of the premiership in 1908.

Mr. Asquith has been twice married. His first wife died in 1891, and three years later he married Edith Alice Margaret, daughter of Sir Charles Tennant, a wealthy Scottish member of parliament. It is said that in her youth, "Margot" Tennant declared that she preferred to become the wife of the prime minister of England. One of her first acts, after taking up her residence in Downing street, was to hold an exhibition of gowns designed by a Parisian dressmaker. This "scandal" led to bitter denunciations of the offending lady, and she has never attained the high social position usually accorded to a premier's better half. When Mrs. Asquith entertained a "Salon" dancer at the official residence, Puritan England grew black in the face from indignation. "Dear me, how interesting," remarked Mrs. Asquith, with a shrug, when told of the displeasure of her comrades.

Mr. Asquith, like most Englishmen, is a sportsman, but he restricts his own activities to golf. He is a devotee of the ancient Scottish game, and so is he attributes his usual good health.

Dr. Francis Edward Clark, president and founder of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, and the leader of an army of fifteen millions of young people in all parts of the world, passed his first moments of childhood to-day. The man who, because of his initials, is affectionately known as "Father Endeavor," is a Canadian by birth, but a New England Yankee by descent. He was born at Aymer, Quebec, Sept. 12, 1851, the son of John C. Symmes. Left an orphan at eight, he was adopted by his uncle, the Rev. E. W. Clark, and assumed his name. He began his work as a minister in Portland, Me., and there, in 1881, founded the first Christian Endeavor Society.

AN EASTERN JOKE

The Sultan of Turkey, says the Argonaut, once played a joke at the expense of some medical experts at Constantinople.

When the plague broke out in his capital, the Sultan asked if anything was known as to the cause. On being informed that it was to be found in the state of the drinking water, he called at once for six empty bottles, which he had filled in his presence, all from the same one of the palace wells, placed his own seal upon them, and then, without divulging their community of origin, handed all six to a prominent analyst.

To his amazement the report sent in was that four of the samples contained plague microbes. The fifth was merely putrid water, and the sixth was quite pure. Abdul Hamid calmly shrugged his shoulders, and kept his thoughts to himself.

THE RACE FOR THE ALBANIAN THRONE

Now that the European powers have determined to select a prince to rule Albania, one of the Danish princes is thought to have the best chance.

When a provisional government was set up in Albania it proclaimed the French Duke of Montpensier an king, and in company with Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, who has a sort of hereditary claim on that throne, the Duke (in French throne) left Paris in March to occupy his kingdom, but the powers do not seem to be impressed with his right to rule.

A Danish prince's prospect is bright because Emperor William has declared a preference for a Swedish or a Danish prince for the position, notwithstanding that the job is wanted by two of his own sons, Ernst Frederick and Joachim, and more than a dozen other German princes, including Duke Robert of Saxe-Meiningen, Prince Max of Schaumburg-Lippe, one of the Windisch-Grätz princes and a prince of Donnersmarck.

Numerous thrones have been adorned by members of the Danish royal family. It has furnished a king to Greece and one to Norway, a queen to England and a queen to Russia as its most striking contributions. Now Prince Gustavus, the king's youngest brother, and Princes Axel and Axel have bared their heads for the new crown.

Prince William of Sweden was a formidable candidate, but his wife, "the Merry Grand Duchess," Marie Pavlovna, of Russia, put her foot down that she would not "run the risk of an Albanian danger," adding that "any rich Russian is better off than the king of such a miserable country."

There is a possibility that an American woman may wear the new Albanian crown. Mrs. Huger Pratt, formerly of Chicago and New York, and for several years resident in Paris, married a few weeks ago a Prince Karagorevitch, a grandson of the King of Serbia and an aspirant for the throne.

Prince Victor Napoleon, who married a daughter of the late King of Belgium, has been scheming for the Albanian kingship as a stepping stone to the imperial throne of France.

Marquis Aladro has some hereditary pretensions, but he seems to be little known.

A STORY OF LIPTON.

"It requires a lot of courage and charity to be philanthropic," said Sir James Lipton, when he was asked when I was just starting in business, was very poor, and bought every article to enlarge my little shop. My only assistant was a boy of fourteen, faithful, willing and honest. One day I heard him complaining, and with justice, that his clothes were so shabby that he was ashamed to go to any place of worship on Sunday. A new suit this year," he told me. "Dad's out of work, and it takes all my wages to pay the rent."

"I thought the matter over, and then took a sovereign from my cash-box, and bought a new suit of blue cloth. He was so grateful that I felt repaid for my sacrifice. But the next day he didn't come to work. I met his mother in the street and asked her the reason."

"Why, Mr. Lipton," she said, curtly, "Jimmie took my respectable, thanks to you, sir, that I thought I would send him round town to-day to see if he couldn't get a better job."

A CLEVER RUSE.

The lawyer's client, one Wheelock, had got into a quarrel with a certain McDonald during their negotiations for the trade of horses. The quarrel had gone so far that McDonald had made application to a magistrate to have Wheelock bound over to keep the peace, alleging that he had threatened to do him (McDonald) bodily injury. When the case was called McDonald testified to the circumstances under which Wheelock had threatened him. The cross-examination began. "Now, Mr. McDonald," the lawyer said, "you declare that you are under the fear of bodily harm?"

"I am, sir." "You are even afraid of your life?" "I am, sir." "Then you freely admit that Wheelock can whip you, Pat McDonald?" The question aroused McDonald's "Irish" instantly. "Bill Wheelock whip me? Never!" he shouted. "I can whip him and any half-dozen like him!" "That will do, Mr. McDonald," said the attorney. The court was already in a roar, and the lawyer rested the case without further testimony or argument. The case was dismissed. It was evident that McDonald could not be under serious bodily fear of a man whom, in his own opinion, he had only to use one-seventh of his strength to whip.

MAYOR SAYS ECONOMY IS OBJECT OF HIS ACT

P. Sinnott Says Work of City Clerk Can Be Done by Stenographer

City Clerk Dowler was reluctant this morning to make any statement concerning his latest suspension at the hands of Mayor Morley.

"Under ordinary circumstances," he said, "I should not say anything about this suspension, but, as the council meets to-night and the public has already received through the press information of the particulars of one side of the case, I feel justified in granting you a brief interview."

"I cannot allow the statements made in the mayor's letter and the letter of his secretary to go for one minute uncontradicted. I take this opportunity at the earliest moment of saying that the statements in both letters were a gross misrepresentation of the facts.
From beginning to end, both letters are obviously the work of one inspiring mind. It is only part of the policy that the present incumbent of the mayor's chair has pursued towards me for five years, and is its culmination.
The last desperate effort to the city having failed in all the previous years through these efforts to displace with the services of an official against whom he has been unable to bring any charge approaching a justifiable one for his dismissal on grounds of incompetence, inefficiency or malfeasance."

Can Disprove Statements

"There is not a statement made in either of the letters that is capable of proof, and it gives an opportunity to disprove them, every one. The general statement that I am a 'disloyal agent' is a gross misrepresentation of the facts. I am a man of integrity and loyalty, and I am a man of high character. I am a man of high character and loyalty, and I am a man of high character and loyalty."

"I cannot, of course, in this brief statement, go into a refutation of the proof of the allegations in detail. There is one, however, which I cannot pass uncontradicted. It relates to the suspension of my office. It would appear from the statement made by the mayor that I was dismissed (to use an ordinary term) 'to give' my assistant from out of the employment of the corporation, whereas the contrary is the fact. Only when pressed by the mayor and the chairman of the finance committee to state how I could reduce the expenditure in my office did I say that I could not undertake to run the office with a reduction of a cost of $100 per month.
I said in making this statement that I wished it distinctly understood that this issue was not brought about by me, but was forced on me, and that I would not raise my little finger to injure my assistant or to do anything to cause his dismissal from the employ of the corporation, nor would I injure his prospects for receiving that increase in salary which his long service to the city justified under the new by-law."

Serves People, Not Mayor

"I realize that I am not the servant of the mayor, but an official of the corporation of Victoria, that I am serving the council and ratepayers, and that so long as the council representing them is satisfied with my services I shall do my work honestly, faithfully and diligently, despite whatever bitter persecution one man may level against me.
I have done it in the past and am prepared to do it in the future if I am reinstated. If I am reinstated it will be a protest against the methods adopted to displace with my services. If I am not reinstated it will be a triumph of misrepresentation over truth and of injustice over justice."

The City Clerk Came to His Office as usual this morning to answer inquiries which could not be met by a substitute, but performed no official act. The ratification of Mayor Morley's action, which it will be remembered was fore-casted at Monday night's council meeting in the statements of several opposition, will come before the council at to-night's special meeting, and inasmuch as Alderman Cuthbert also has a motion arising from criticism of the engineer's department, the session promised to be an exceedingly lively one.

The Special Purpose for which the meeting was called, the consideration of Colonel Thomson's report on the engineer's department, may not be reached before the two sessions and the regular routine business is disposed of.

The Correspondence

Following to the correspondence referred to in Mr. Dowler's statement:
Mayor's Office,
September 11, 1913.

W. J. Dowler, Esq.,
City Clerk,
Victoria, B. C.

Dear Sir,—On account of the apparent inability of relieving the strained situation in your department, through the action of the finance committee in the time at their disposal, I have decided to again appeal to the council direct to displace with your services, as being the only just and practical way, in my judgment, in which the office can be reorganized on a modern, economical basis.

You have represented to the finance committee your ability to carry on the service of your office without Mr.
Bradley, and thus make a saving of $100 per month, your proposal being to retain Miss Cameron's services, or someone in her place, at $60, and to obtain, in Mr. Bradley's place, another help at $50, thus saving $100 of Mr.
Bradley's salary of $150.

On informing Mr. Bradley of your proposal, he informed me that, with his twenty-two years' experience of the office, he would guarantee a full and efficient service with the assistance of only Mr. Sinnott and the office boy, thus being able to save the $200 per month paid you, and the $60 and $50 per month you proposed to pay Miss Cameron and the assistant in his place, making a saving of $310 in comparison with your saving of $100 per month.

In your evidence at the recent investigation, you made it appear that there was abundance of work, not only for your "office," but also for Mr.
Bradley, and also Messrs. Telfer and Whitwell.
The work of your office at that time was no different from the present, and now we have practical proof that with both Miss Cameron and Mr. Bradley absent, Mr. Sinnott has experienced no difficulty in taking care of the routine work of the office, in addition to his work as mayor's secretary, and that with assistance from yourself which he could largely dispense with as unnecessary and with doing much correspondence that is also unnecessary.

Apart from the efficiency and economy of the corporation, there are other and sufficient reasons why your services should be dispensed with.
Notwithstanding the severe lesson of the inquiry early in the year, you have failed utterly in Miss Cameron's case to exert control over her according to your duty under section 14 of the by-law, and her long to the service at this time is due principally to your neglect of duty.

Although more prompt than formerly in arriving in the morning, your habits are such that it is usually 9.30 o'clock before your day's service begins, and you have been absent from the city hall a considerable portion of your official time, not necessarily on city business.

For days together you have met persons on private business in the rear of the council chamber, and have, to avoid publicity, resorted to the privacy of the upper state committee room phone for private business.

When approached by the mayor for desk room in your spacious office for the weights and measures officer, you objected on the grounds that all the desks were in use, and made it clear that if Mr. Robertson was to have a desk a new one would have to be provided. On an investigation as to the presence of the mayor and chairman of the finance committee, it proved that the entire capacity of one large desk, with side drawers and top structure, was, with the exception of one shallow receptacle, used for your own private business books and documents, as also was space in the vault, again notwithstanding all that occurred at the recent investigation in regard to your using your office for private business purposes.

Taking the above circumstances into account, I do not see how, in duty to my office, I can act otherwise than again suspend you and report the matter to the council.

Therefore, you are hereby suspended subject to the council's ruling.
Yours truly,
(Signed) A. J. MORLEY,
Mayor.

N.B.—It is for you to avoid unexpected publicity, if you care so to do.
Unless I hear from you in the meantime, it is my intention to forward by this evening's mail a copy of this communication, and a copy of my secretary's report, to the council, as also the work of your office consists, based upon his experience of these days when both Mr. Bradley and Miss Cameron are absent, and the detail work has devolved upon him, in order that the aldermen may be in a position to deal with the matter at Friday's council meeting. I am also enclosing copy of the secretary's report for your information.

Mayor's Office,
September 10, 1913.

Mr. Sinnott,
Mayor's Secretary.

Dear Sir,—In the absence of both Mr.
Bradley and Miss Cameron, the whole onus of the clerical assistance has devolved upon you, affording you a critical test of the actual work of the clerical department, and the time necessarily taken up by the work.

A report from you of your experience of this work will be of considerable value, and I would be glad, in addition, of any suggestions arising from your experience of modern office routine elsewhere, as bearing upon your work in connection with the clerical department at this time.

Yours truly,
(Signed) A. J. MORLEY,
Mayor.

Mayor's Office,
September 11, 1913.

His Worship the Mayor.

Dear Sir,—With reference to your letter of yesterday's date, my experience of the work of the city clerk's office, during the absence of Mr. Bradley and Miss Cameron, confirms the opinion which I have expressed, that the work could be performed more efficiently and expeditiously with a reduced staff.

The routine work of the council this week was of the usual volume, and notwithstanding the absence of two members of the staff, it was more speedily dealt with than it has been in the past, and this without any appreciable assistance from Mr. Dowler, who occupied his time in writing letters home.
The office boy attended to the counter and the copying of letters, etc.

Apart from my duties as mayor's secretary, which involve typewriting work, answering inquiries, etc., I have without working after hours, attended to the main work of the office, and among other things, wrote the letters, over ninety in number, and made copies of all enclosures for outgoing mail, and attended to innumerable other duties of minor importance.

Hitherto this work, and the framing of the minutes, to which I attend, has been distributed over the whole office staff of five clerks, and the work prolonged throughout the week. The correspondence alone has usually occupied the exclusive time of Mr. Dowler and Miss Cameron for the greater part of the week.

Outside of the local improvement work of Mr. Bradley and the council work, to which I attend, there is no other work of consequence, except, perhaps, the posting of the cemetery books, which occupies about one hour of my time per month.

Supervision of the work of the office is unnecessary, so far as I am aware.
The correspondence also is of such a straightforward character, that to dictate the letters is a stenographer, as is customary, to absurd, and involves the time of two people dealing with letters which in an ordinary business office would be dealt with by a capable clerk who could typewrite.

Without impairing the efficiency of my office, I feel assured that my previous experience in this and other offices in eastern Canada and the Old Country, that one capable clerk with a knowledge of stenography, assisted by another with typewriting experience, could satisfactorily attend to the work of the office, with possibly the help of an errand boy.

It is evident, such an amount of work would be considered sufficient only to employ a competent clerk-stenographer and an office boy.

The work of the city clerk's office could be curtailed and simplified very considerably. A more up-to-date filing system could replace the present elaborate system, which entails a great deal of unnecessary bookkeeping. The correspondence could be lessened by the use of printed forms. Letters of inquiry re Victoria could be handed to the Vancouver Island Development League for report, as is done in the council's office. Circulars and advertising matter could be handed to the departments interested or simply ac-knowledgeed and consigned to the waste paper basket, instead of leading to protracted correspondence. Many of the letters which are placed on the council file, containing complaints re weights, etc., could be dealt with by the chairman of committees or department heads, who could, if necessary, report to the council. There are also minor duties where a saving of time could be effected, for example, the compiling of the agenda paper, which hitherto has occupied the time of two people for a considerable portion of the afternoon preceding every council meeting.

In all modern offices the rule is a maximum of efficiency at a minimum of expense, but this cannot be said of the city clerk's office, where the idea apparently is to create, instead of to eliminate, unnecessary work.

Yours truly,
(Signed) P. J. SINNOTT,
Secretary.

A TOP-NOTCH SHOT

PICK AND SHOVEL WORK NEEDED.

Concentrated sarcasm for some of the young financiers, so-called, of this country, was offered by W. Sanford Evans, of Winnipeg, in an address to the Association of Canadian Clubs in conference at Hamilton. "The building shovel and pick was the best university this country ever had," he said. "I made for sturdy men. Do you know what Canadians would say to that kind of work now? They would say that it was not white man's work."
"It would nevertheless be a good thing for the country if some of the young men who are now playing with the country's finances were now and for the next ten years busy on railroad construction work. The present financial stringency is the best thing that could have happened to Canada. It is a question whether it will last long enough, however.

It has demonstrated as nothing else could the inherent soundness of our financial institutions, and it has put a temporary check on things which are not sound. The present stringency is caused by conditions in Europe, which check the flow of outside money into Canada. When this condition occurs it means a little squeezing for all of us to set into our cramped quarters, but that is about all.

"The class will rule this country which first has the right attitude towards work, and which secondly practices sound finance. There is no honest work which is not white man's work and good for native Canadians."

GOLF ON THE WAY TO WORK.

I was playing over the golf course of an East Coast resort where the inhabitants' introduction to the royal game synchronized with his first efforts at walking, says a correspondent in the Glasgow News. Following close upon me, in his shirt-sleeves, was a person of workman appearance; and his repeated cries of warning irritated me considerably, for I am by no means a dilatatory player.

As I was addressing my ball at the fifth tee, he hurriedly executed a clever piece of putting on the fourth green and shouted a request to me to be allowed to go first. That could only be, I replied testily, if his engagement were more pressing than my own.

"Well, ye see," he answered deferentially, "I'm flat daft" these few holes on the way back to ma work."

ENTENTE CORDIALE AVERTED DISASTER

PREVENTED WORLD WAR IN LATE CRISIS

Significance Sir Gilbert Parker Attaches to France and England's Friendship

Sir Gilbert Parker, novelist and member for Gravesend in the British House of Commons, who is now touring Canada, declares that the entente cordiale between Great Britain and France saved the world from disaster in the recent crisis. "I believe," he said in an interview, in the east, that the entente cordiale, the friendship between England and France, has prevented a European conflagration over-whining disaster to the world. The union of these two nations after years of discord in a common European policy has prevented combinations would have over-turned the balance of power in Europe and opened the way to dangerous ambitions. The significance of it to Canada is immense, for the friendship of the two nations, on either side of the British Channel means in the end a better understanding between the two races.

It is five years since the author of "Seats of the Mighty" was in Canada last, and his visit before then was in 1906, when, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he attended the inauguration of the two prairie provinces, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Questioned as to the naval issue, Sir Gilbert was not inclined to say much, but made the following statement:

"We are sure that Canada means to play her honorable part in the naval defence of the empire of which she is so powerful and integral a part. However, when she decides to share in that defence, whether it be by direct contribution or by the formation of local navies, England will be satisfied."

"It is twenty-eight years since I left

Canada. I was a boy, when I went. I have never in those twenty-eight years taken sides one way or another in Canadian politics, and I cannot express any opinion here upon the point. The place for me to speak on the question is in the parliament at Westminster, but I am personally certain that both parties in this country will take the one point of view in the end. That may not be this year or next, but it will surely come."

Financial Situation.

Regarding the question of the British investor and Canadian debentures and flotations, Sir Gilbert said: "As for the recent diminution of interest in Canadian issues I am absolutely certain that it will be short-lived and that within a few months there will be just as much enthusiasm for them as there has been in the past years. A few inferior issues will help to spoil the market for the best, but the British public generally, believe in Canada. The recent hesitation has been stock exchange hesitation, underwriter's hesitation and not that of the individual investor throughout the country. Higher rates of interest will exist for all issues throughout the world for some time to come."

"Will the financial situation improve generally?" Sir Gilbert was asked. "Yes, it will in part be due to the close of the Balkan war. But the American financial situation, the uncertainty as to what lengths government interference or regulation of finance will be carried will have and has had powerful effect in disturbing the finances of the world. The scarcity of gold has also contributed to the general unrest but there is a pretty common opinion that this autumn will see a real and legitimate revival of public confidence and the year 1914 gives every promise of a return to the healthy conditions which existed prior to 1907."

While not actually going out of his way in search of copy, Sir Gilbert hopes that his visit will supply him with fresh inspiration and that he will gather new material for other novels. At present he has two more Canadian novels almost completed. One has a French-Canadian setting. The other treats of life in the Far West. "So you see," said the author, "that I, too, am trying to play my little part in keeping our country beneath the eyes of the empire. I am more proud than I can say of the way in which Canada bulks in the eyes of the world to-day. In the twenty-eight years that have passed since I first left the country she has risen from a slow provincialism to the sure and enterprising progressiveness of a second rate power of the world. The young men used to leave Canada as if the plague were after them. They stay now to scoop the fruits of progress."

TRAGIC LIFE OF BELGIAN PRINCESS

ROMANTIC STORY OF HER PRESENT MARRIAGE

Late King Leopold Hated His Eldest Daughter and Refused Assistance

An echo of the romantic and unhappy life of Princess Louise, of Belgium, eldest daughter of the late King Leopold, was heard in Brussels a few days ago. Princess Louise, who has not lived in Belgium for ten years, asked the courts to release her from the payment of debts amounting to 18 million francs ($3,200,000). Her estate, she says, is valued at only five million francs ($1,000,000).

These debts are the accumulation of years of rather extravagant living with no very secure income. The late King Leopold, pronounced in his likes and dislikes, dissolute and a rouse, seems to have hated his eldest daughter from her childhood and refused her financial assistance and barred her from the palace during his last illness. His hatred of the Princess Louise is said to have been founded upon a trivial incident which occurred when she was only a child.

How Leopold's Hatred Began.

One day the Queen sent her daughter to carry a note to some man in another part of the palace and cautioned her above all else not to let the corridor of the palace with the secret mislive, who should the Princess Louise meet but Leopold himself. With childish loyalty to her mother she concealed the note before the King confronted her. And when he questioned her about her errand the young Princess stubbornly refused to answer his questions or give him any information about her mission. Suspecting he was being deceived but being unable to prove it, Leopold, it is said, from that day manifested an intense hatred for his daughter.

When she was only seventeen the Princess Louise was married by order of her father to Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg, who soon came to be known as the "Unspeakable Coburg." Philip was thirty-one when he first saw and coveted the beautiful blond Princess Louise at the Belgian court. He was already enjoying the reputation of being "the wickedest man in Europe," but had not yet grown into the bloated and debauched drunkard of modern days.

"Soon after our marriage," the Princess once said, "he was cad enough to tell me that he had been desperately in love with my mother and that she had told him the best thing he could do was to marry me."

Leopold would not even bid his daughter good-bye when she left the palace at Brussels for her new home at the Austrian court, weeping and vowing to her mother she would never live with the dissolute man to whom she had been married.

The palace of Coburg at Budapest she found to be a hotbed of intrigue, scandal and debauchery. The first man there to make love to the pretty young Belgian bride was Ferdinand, who became Czar of Bulgaria, a brother of Prince Philip. He came wooing his brother's wife, and once, she says, gave her a dagger and told her to kill her husband with it. Such were the gentle ways of the royal personages among whom she was cast. In time Louise revolted.

One man with whom there came a chance meeting on the road one day as the Princess drove by in her carriage seemed different from the others. This was Count Mattiachich Keglevich, a dashing young lieutenant in the Austrian army. It was only by a superb exhibition of horsemanship that he prevented his mount from swerving into the carriage. The Princess ordered her carriage stopped to watch him conquer his unmanageable horse. She smiled in approval when the lieutenant had won. He saluted and they went their separate ways. But this chance meeting led to his acquiring a place in the personal staff of the Princess Philip, and their friendship ripened quickly into love.

They Elope to Paris.

The fast-going Saxe-Coburg Austrian court had something to talk about when one day the Princess Louise and Count Mattiachich eloped to Paris. About all her own personal belongings the Princess was able to take along were jewels and a few gowns. When their funds were exhausted the jewels were sold and pawned and the Princess and the man she really loved, and who loved her, continued to live by signing notes that were cashed.

Princess Philip was furious. He sent the lieutenant a challenge. They met one day by appointment in a riding academy at Vienna. Pistols and swords both, were the weapons. Philip fired twice at the lieutenant, neither shot taking effect, and the young lieutenant, who could easily have killed the dissolute husband, instead, fired into the air. Then the swords were brought out, and in attempting to parry the thrusts of Philip, Lieut. Mattiachich wounded Philip on the right hand and arm, deep cuts that gave him much pain and made him carry his arm in a sling for several weeks.

But Philip planned a surer and more sinister revenge. He contrived with the corrupt old King Leopold to have his eloping wife declared insane and had her imprisoned in a Saxon mad-house for five years. Lieut. Mattiachich, too, was arrested on a trumped-up charge of forgery in connection with the cashing of the notes in Paris, although the Princess Louise maintained she had signed them herself voluntarily. His sword was broken, his uniform stripped from him and he was sent to a military prison. He spent five long years there and it is said he was subjected at times to torture by order of the dissolute Philip.

Sought the Princess Again.

But one day the doors opened for this romantic young officer. The irons were stripped from his wrists and he emerged a free man. Philip had obtained a divorce from Louise. Mattiachich's love had not cooled. He sought out the asylum where Louise was confined. He stood near the gates when they took her out for a ride, and she recognized him. Thirty letters were passed between them through assistance from servants within, and plans for her escape were perfected. One night a waiting motor car carried them to the frontier and they were soon safe in France, where they have lived most of the time since.

In a remarkable letter she wrote to a Socialist newspaper Princess Louise said:

"I am now past 50 years old, but my heart remains young and seeks affection. I do not want to be a Princess any longer. I want to be a woman, respected and envied with love and

DEDICATION SERVICE ATTENDED BY MANY

New Esquimalt Methodist Church and Sunday School Formally Opened

Nearly three hundred people gathered yesterday afternoon at the new Methodist church, Admiral's road, Esquimalt, for the dedication and opening services held in connection with the recently-completed edifice. Rev. Thos. Keyworth, pastor of the church, and Rev. T. Wilkinson, conducted a short service on the steps of the building, and a few minutes later Horace J. Knott formally opened the church doors.

The dedication services commenced with a prayer by Rev. J. A. Wood and Rev. Thos. Green and Rev. Thos. Robson read the lessons. The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Sippell, of Mount Pleasant church, Vancouver, who spoke on the text: "But there is a spirit in men and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding." (Job 32, v. 8.)

Most people, the speaker pointed out, received most of their inspirations in life through their five senses, and these powers limited their horizon of conception. Reference was made to the researches of Sir Oliver Lodge, and his claims that he could hear the voices of those on the other side. This, he said, betrayed a better hearing power than most people possessed. The claims of Mrs. Edley's followers were also disputed, and the speaker said that he blushed to mention the names of all these terms and sophisms. The wider revelation of the universe could only come to man according as he was able to rise to the high planes with God, and to give heed to the spiritual faculty within himself. Man as a physical being was only in an evolutionary stage. Revelation would teach more in one week than all the new theology of a Bergesen or an Eucken.

There was too much tendency at the present time to generalise and say that every man, no matter what his occupation had been called to work in that particular way by God. One might believe in a social Christianity, but there had to be also a particular mystical revelation in the man who went out as a messenger of the Gospel. Too much stress was laid by many pastors, even on the material success. There was, however, no evidence of the Gospel in a big crowd or in a well-filled church treasury. These were material and well enough, but the call of the church had fundamentally to do with the spiritual life. Abraham, Moses, Isaiah and the disciples the speaker quoted as examples of the true spiritual "call," and by putting these together it could be seen, he said, that the vision of a mighty task had been the stimulant.

The promise of a betterment of humanity's material condition was not the thing which was to give man peaceful death. The only thought which would give happiness at such an hour was that of a greater spiritual life hereafter.

The service concluded with the reading, by Rev. Dr. Scott, of the 122nd Psalm, after which the church committee formally handed over the church to Dr. Sippell, who read the formal dedication service in reply.

Sunday School Opened.

The congregation then left the church and adjourned to the Sunday school, Miss Sara Spencer opening the doors, and Mr. Smallwood, for the trustees, handing over the hall to Noah Shakespeare, the pioneer Sunday school worker of Victoria, who pointed out the merit and importance of having a well-equipped Sunday school. The pastor, who recognized the need of having good tools was the one who would make the greatest success of the work, and he was pleased to congratulate both the minister and the Sunday school on the preparation they had made for carrying on the work among the young people. He was proud, he said, to belong to so big and powerful a movement as the Sunday school, which had a membership of something like thirty millions in the world to-day. Its work was threefold: it aimed at the conversion of the pupil; the development of character; and the training of teachers.

The dedication services concluded the big gathering sat down to a deliciously served inauguration banquet, prepared and served by the ladies of the church. Later in the evening a public meeting was held at which several of the visitors spoke, including Rev. Dr. Sippell, Rev. T. Wilkinson, Rev. D. W. Ganton and the chairman, Rev. Mr. Keyworth, the proceedings concluding the inaugural gathering and services in the new building.

COCAINE SELLER IS GIVEN A HEAVY FINE

Police Break Up One of Chief Sources of Supply of Users of Drug

A severe blow is believed to have been given to the traffic in cocaine and other drugs of that class by the conviction of Chun Dow in the police court this morning.

The old man, enfeebled by his own devotion to the stimulant, was lightly dealt with when he was last before the magistrate on account of his state of health, but the leniency does not seem to have been appreciated by him. He has maintained his position as one of the chief sources of supply for whites and Chinese who are in the "snowbird" class, and the seizure made by Detectives Turner and Siciliano yesterday afternoon demonstrated the extent of his business.

There were about forty small packets of cocaine, reminiscent of the form in which powders come in childhood's days, which retail at "two bits" each. In addition Chun had over a hundred squares of white paper three inches each way ready to wrap more of the drug in for his numerous customers. In a small box were a couple of hundred tiny slips of cardboard cut from old playing cards, folded down the middle, in which those who could only purchase a single "snuff" were supplied.

Little wooden spoons for wholesale and retail handling of the drug were in the outfit. A large sixteen-ounce bottle and half-a-dozen four-ounce bottles in which the old man had obtained the drug were found in the tub, and altogether the find was about the largest of the sort yet made.

Detective Turner said he had arrested Chun Dow at 2.40 yesterday afternoon in his cabin in Theatre alley, as a result of information that he had been selling cocaine. Under the bed-clothes and hidden in various places about the cabin was found a large quantity of the drug and empty bottles in which it had been obtained wholesale.

Detective Siciliano corroborated this evidence, and supplemented it by saying that on searching the accused at the police station six packets of cocaine were found in his possession. He had about $22, chiefly in small silver.

Chun Dow claimed that the cocaine found was in his possession for medicinal use. He was a sick man, he said, in which statement his appearance rather bore out. He was suffering from a cough and bleeding. A local druggist, whose name he gave, told him that snuffing cocaine would stop it, he swore, and from him he bought $3 worth.

City Prosecutor Harrison expressed a natural curiosity as to the trouble Chun had gone to if the drug was for his own personal use. The accused admitted that all the cocaine found by the detectives belonged to him and alleged that he had made it up into packets to take, one packet in two days. The innumerable little slips of cardboard for snuffing cocaine from he said he made for himself, having lots of time and nothing to do. Among his visitors was a white man named Charley and several Chinese. He sought to minimize the crowd of twenty callers who came to the cabin while the detectives were in by making the number five or six.

Chun said he had a doctor's prescription for the drug and gave this to the druggist who, he claimed, supplied him with it. He gave the name and approximate location of this doctor. The bottles found he alleged to be the property of some one else, but who it was he did not know, and he vehemently denied ever selling any cocaine to anyone.

"I think you make a business of selling cocaine," said the magistrate. When this was translated to Chun he persisted in his denial. This did not save him from a fine of $50 and $250 costs, or a jail term of three months.

The badge of licensed driver, 292 was found in the cabin. This was issued to Peter Hansen, who on Tuesday was sent to jail for six months for burglary. According to Chun one of his white callers had robbed him on Saturday, but if his story is true the offender got the wrong box, assuming that he was trying to secure possession of cocaine.

Magistrate Jay, in view of the allegations made by Chun, said that these would be investigated, and was informed by the city prosecutor that the police would make careful inquiry into the whole story.

MARRIED AT SEATTLE.

Miss Maud Hatcher Becomes Bride of Mr. Leo S. Job; Will Reside Here.

The marriage took place quietly in Seattle on Tuesday of this week of Miss Maud Hatcher, daughter of Mrs. Hatcher of View street, to Mr. Leo S. Job, manager of the Balmoral Hotel. The event came as somewhat of a surprise to the many friends of both parties, and the couple have been overwhelmed with congratulations since their return. Mr. Job is a native of Denver, Colo., but the couple will continue to reside in this city.

A well-known Scotch gentleman relates the following story: Sandy had been staying with some friends for about a month, and was about to pay for a drink when his friend assured him that he would pay. "Na, na; I'll not allow it," said Sandy; "ye've been keeping me in everything at yer house for a month, and ye've treated me to the theatre and sell ye've paid for all the drinks. I tell ye I'll not have a mair of it; we'll have to toss for this one."

EXPECT BUILDINGS OF 150 STORIES

Another Structure to Be Erected in New York to Eclipse the Woolworth Building

Desire for the distinction of owning the tallest building in the world did not end with the Woolworth building, New York. The Pan-American States Association, a concern which plans to centralize in a single building all interests affiliated with South American countries, has had Francis H. Kimball draw plans for a building that will reach 150 feet further into the clouds than the Woolworth building. The structure will tower 90 feet. The design of this building indicates that the height limit of office buildings has not been reached. When the Metropolitan Tower was being built a prominent builder said that it wouldn't be long before New Yorkers would be eating at 150-story buildings. Some thought he was drawing on his imagination, but recent happenings seem to indicate that such a building is not improbable in New York if builders continue pushing the top of every new building erected above the roof of its neighbor.

The Singer building had hardly been finished when the Metropolitan Tower took away its glory. Then Mr. Woolworth came along and took away the glory that the Metropolitan had taken from the Singer tower. The Woolworth building is not entirely finished, yet announcement is made of a building that will top this great building which many thought would hold the reputation of the world's tallest for many a day.

The prediction of the builder of a few years ago that New York would soon have a 150-story building was repeated yesterday by an engineer who has been associated with several buildings in this town. "Unless a law is passed limiting the height of structures such a building is as sure as the earth is round. As Mr. McAneny is the most eager to legislate against New York buildings skyward, I don't believe builders and those who are planning the erection of buildings taller than some now standing need worry, for Mr. McAneny will not have much to say on such subjects after the first of the year."

"Aside from financial support the only thing that can prevent a 150-story building from being built is the Legislature. Next to this is the wind pressure. Great winds sweep over

Manhattan, and when they hit against the side of a tall building there is a great strain. But the wind problem has been solved, for all of the new buildings can stand up under a 125-mile gale, which is improbable in this part of the world.

"Manhattan is an ideal place for tall buildings because of the foundation that it affords. The island is practically a solid rock thirteen miles long and several miles wide. In but few places have builders been taxed with foundation troubles. Engineers met trouble in building the northeast end of the foundation for the municipal building. They had to go down quite some distance before they got what they wanted. The rest of the foundation was an easy matter. With solid rock for foundation it is possible to build to any height."

"This is one reason why buildings are taller here than in any other city in the world. Unless the Legislature acts against such buildings I sincerely believe that some day in the near future we will be starting in wonderment at the ironworkers as they crawl like ants over the steel frame of a building 100 or more stories in the clouds."

ANOTHER GRACEFUL ACT.

The Manchester Guardian has unearthed—or, rather, unwaters—an other graceful act. It took place on the Cherwell at Oxford. A punt with the usual Eight

Week cargo of charming girls was passing under Magdalen Bridge, and, as everybody knows, the river takes a turn just there which is rather awkward because the construction of the bridge arches prevents a clear view of the river.

The punt ran full into a Canadian canoe in which an Indian undergraduate was enjoying the day by himself. He was shot violently into the water.

He rose dripping, trod water, and recovered his straw hat in order to place it on his head, remove it with something as near a bow as his situation allowed, and apologized to the ladies for incommencing them.

THE HUMAN LEOPARDS OF SIERRA LEONE

Cannibalism Flourishes in That District; Efforts to Exterminate a Secret Society

London, Aug. 29.—A subject of grim interest is dealt with in a dispatch from the governor of Sierra Leone, which has been published by the colonial office as a white paper. For some years past, the dispatch states, possibly for centuries, it observes, in another place—certain districts of a protectorate have been infested by a secret organization, called the "Human Leopard Society," the principal rites of which seem to include human sacrifice and the eating of human flesh.

Several cases of murder committed by the society had at various times come before the Circuit Court, and convictions obtained, but the full extent of the society's operations was not brought to light until last year, when the district commissioner received information that from 20 to 30 murders had been committed since 1907.

Having resolved to exterminate the organization, the government caused last year extensive arrests to be made, with the result that no fewer than 336 persons were got hold of on the information supplied by some members of the organization, who turned King's evidence. It soon, however, appeared that no corroborative evidence against the majority of them could be obtained owing to the fear the society inspired among the natives, so that only 42 were committed for trial, and the rest were discharged. Later on 66 other persons were arrested, so that the total number convicted amounted to 108.

Law Made More Drastic. Before their trial a previous act dealing with the same subject was amended, the society being declared unlawful, and the authorities being armed with extensive powers of search and arrest. A special tribunal was also appointed, consisting of three members, with the native assessors, such as ordinarily sit in the Circuit Court. This tribunal was to try the 108 prisoners and have the power to recommend expulsion in case the evidence should not prove sufficient to justify conviction.

In the course of examination before this court an examination which was conducted "with the utmost care and patience," some of the evidence offered by the informers proved worthless, in consequence of which the charges were not persisted in in the case of 71 persons; of the remaining, three died before the actual trial, so that only 24 were proceeded against.

The result of the trial was that nine were convicted of murder, ten others of lesser offences, and the remaining 15 were acquitted. Of these convicted, seven were executed, and two were sentenced to imprisonment for life. Of those acquitted, eleven were subsequently expelled from the protectorate.

The Society Not Killed.

In spite of this drastic action the government does not venture "to assert that the criminal organization has been broken up." He thinks that "the belief of the natives in the efficacy of the 'medicines' concocted by the society, the power and authority enjoyed by the possessors of these medicines, the fact that periodical human sacrifices are considered to be necessary in order to renew the efficacy of the medicines, and a tendency on the part of some natives to cannibalism pure and simple—all these causes will contribute to the survival of this baneful organization."

Any member of an unlawful society or any person who takes part in its operations is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 11 years.

IF CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated give "California" Syrup of Figs.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California" Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California" Syrup of Figs because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California" Syrup of Figs, which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California" Fig Syrup Company. Refuse any other kind with contempt.

CANADIAN CELEBRITIES

JOSEPH DEMERS, M. P.

Seeing Joseph Demers, the member of parliament for St. John's and Irvellville—seeing him on a back bench in the House, or in the corridors, or at the Liberal headquarters, or at the Russell House, Ottawa, is like seeing a good picture out of its frame. A good picture is always improved by a good frame. The frame that sets off the native charm of Joseph Demers is not anything in Ottawa. Neither is it Montreal, of which he is a near citizen, nor even Quebec City, where he is indeed very much at home.

It is the quiet little city of St. John's, P.Q., thirty miles south of Montreal and about twenty miles from the border that Harry Thaw crossed lately into a town very much like St. John's. On one bank of the Richelieu is St. John's; on the other Irvellville. The parliamentary Colossus is Demers. In each burg he is as much a part of the place as a petal is of a rose. What Demers is in private and public life, St. John's plus Irvellville has largely made him. And there is no member of parliament in Ottawa that has a prettier home town, or that likes better to get home at the week end and to stay home as long as he can, than the little, genial, twinkling-eyed French-Canadian that speaks English, not quite as well as he does French, but speaks it very well or he would never do to be member for St. John's. Some consider the place a suburb of Montreal. It is, thank Heaven, far enough from the Babel to please J. Demers. In his big house and garden; close enough that if not for parliament at Ottawa he could slip in every now and then for an evening of grand opera. In that thrifty little town of big factories and sleepy barges and pulpwood cargoes drifting out to the border, J. Demers is known to mostly all men. He does law there. He is notary and avocat and general adviser. The English-speaking people know him almost as well as the French. St. John's is one of the best bi-lingual towns in Canada. Demers is a bi-linguist; not merely because he speaks both languages, but because living in St. John's and representing in parliament both French and English, he thinks in both languages. It would not do for Demers to think only in French and live in St. John's. There is a very old fountain in the market-place of the town. You look, expecting to find chiseled in the granite the name of some Norman or Picardian or Tournaian as dear to the philosophy of Henri Bourassa. No, the name of the man in whose honor the memorial was erected is English—or maybe Scotch.

Down in the little park or in either of them—for there is one at the C.P.R. station and one at the end of the long C.P.R. bridge—many and many a time J. Demers has mounted rostrum to address the electors of St. John's. He must do that in two languages. And if you stroll along there of a Sunday evening when the band is playing in the forum, you know why. This band, often has it played at the meetings of Joe Demers, is no scrub band. It is one of the prides of Demers's heart as he hears it do Gounod and Rossini and Tchaikowsky and ragtime and musical comedy. And almost as though Demers himself had ordained it, at the end of every programme comes first in stow solemn measure the strain of "O Canada," then "God Save the King."

It is a pretty picture this gathering of two peoples amicably in one little town. And if you stroll about with Demers, maybe up from the yacht club of which he is a member, he will tell you what he thinks of this business of thinking in two languages.

Some travellers say that the habitant of Drummond is out of date. Mr. Demers takes little stock in that sort of habitant. J. Demers, perhaps, he takes even less. He knows better, the shrewd, wide-awake French-Canadian of St. John's. He is better acquainted with the folk that work in any of the two or three thumping big factories there, and long ago they were of more languages than one. Demers believes, like Mr. Bourassa, but

Accent on the "but." Mr. Demers is not a Nationalist, not at least in parliament or on the stump, nor for any political purpose. He is a Liberal. He is a back-bench solid support to Laurier. Why, in the debate of the deadlock over the Naval Aid Bill, didn't the member for St. John's surprise even himself? Seldom if ever before had he lifted his voice in parliament, most of the time genially twinkling through his specs at the show, content to be a mum back-bencher except when it came to voicing some emergency. And the deadlock was an emergency. It had need of Demers, not only as a quorum-maker and a listener, but as a speaker. Twice did the member for St. John's rise to address the House in French on that important subject. The tack he took no one remembers. Even Demers has forgotten it. But he broke the ice. He learned what it was to speak in parliament as well as on the stump, or down at the handstand in the park of St. John's.

But there is no more politics in the personality of Demers. When he talks about the French and the English problem—some call it the race problem, but down in St. John's it is no such thing—he forgets that there are Liberals or Conservatives or Nationalists in Canada. He remembers only that every French-Canadian is first of all a Canadian. But he does not think that to be a real French-Canadian consists in worshipping the French language. He does not pretend that the French which he speaks is the same as the French of Paris. He believes that it is the language of Canadians, one language of Canadians—and that the other is English. And there are good loyal supporters of Demers in St. John's who speak the

LYDD GEORGE AND HOUSE OF LORDS

FIGHTING WELSHMAN HITS FROM SHOULDER

Denounces Their Arrogance and Flays Their Inconsistency

Lloyd George recently delivered a fighting speech at Carnarvon in which he made some striking references to the House of Lords. In the course of his remarks he said:

The Peers declare that they are prepared to resort to violence to prevent the House of Commons, the House chosen by seven million electors, even discussing measures of which the Lords and their friends have notified their dislike. What arrogance! (Cheers.) If, notwithstanding this civil disturbance, the government succeed in placing these acts of parliament upon the statute-book, the Peers and their followers will support, foment, and promote civil war and bloodshed in these islands in order to defy an act of parliament. They make rules under which the game is played. They make them so as to suit themselves. They insist upon being umpires as well as players, and they invariably alter the rules when they go to play. (Hear, hear.) Their opponents must play over a course beset with bunkers, but when their turn comes to play, before they begin the bunkers must be leveled and the course cleared of all difficulties. (Hear, hear.) Not only are they bad constitutionalists, but they are wretched sportsmen.

Liberalism in this country has been fighting for centuries for civil and religious equality. Neither of these ideals has yet been attained, although we are slowly getting nearer. Even the Parliament Act did not establish equality between the parties. Under the old system the Tories got their legislation through without question, demur, or delay, whether the country needed it or not.

The Liberal Salmon and the Tory Pike.

Nothing but the fear of a revolution would induce the Lords to carry through a measure promoted by a Liberal government if they happened to dislike it. Every Tory bill when it entered the House of Lords was treated as a member of the family; it had blood in its veins, its pedigree was unchallengeable. Its faults were overlooked, and as it left it was escorted through the door that led to the Palace of the King. Every Liberal measure was scowled at as a plebeian intruder which had been forced into the aristocratic drawing-room. It was insulted and molested "and evermore went out by the same door, wherein it came."

The Parliament Act was an effort not to redress our inequality but to mitigate it. Liberals were still too modest to demand equal treatment for their ideas with those that emanated from aristocratic brains. A Liberal bill has to be sent up once, twice, and three times to the Peers before it can be presented to the King for his signature.

To vary the metaphor the floodgates were closed against the Liberal salmon swimming up stream. It had to leap the weir, but it had to wait a long interval before the third was permitted. Then it was allowed to pass through unless it had been speared in the meantime. Meanwhile the water might abate and it might have to wait for the next flood. But the gates were always open and the channel always free for the Tory pike. (Laughter.)

A Last Effort to Strengthen Class Ascendancy.

The fact of the matter is they are making a desperate effort—and I think the last desperate effort—(cheers)—to restore to the full and further to strengthen the grip of class ascendancy over the Legislature. At bottom the same principle actuates the Tories in this policy as in the state establishment of religion, the old spirit of dominancy. The government chosen by their class, the legislative proposals favored by their class, the laws made for the protection and the exaltation of their class, the particular religious creed affected by their class—they are all in a superior category to ministers, measures, laws, and religions that derive their support merely from the masses of the people. That is the problem we are face to face with, and it is well we should realize it. (Cheers.)

There has been a great deal of talk about getting class against class. The most effective way of doing this is by setting class above class. (Cheers.) Mr. Dismell once wrote a great book about two nations which lived side by side in this country.

The Tory leaders mean to have two separate constitutions, two separate sets of laws for the government of these two nations. (Cheers.) There is the constitution under which Tory governments work. There is the totally different constitution under which the Liberal majority in this country has to labor. There are the laws which the Tories impose upon others for the defence and protection of the privileges and the monopolies as well as the rights and interests of the dominant class, and there are the laws which do not bind the Tory nation at all. The Parliament Act is a statute of the realm carried only three years ago. It is to be treated as if it were a dead letter already.

Nothing but a revolution next year, is to be defied by open rebellion. Neither of these defiances can be treated as treason, because the Tory nation claims to be above Liberal-made law. The Game Laws and the Enclosure Acts.

If, on the other hand, the game laws, the enclosure acts were overruled by a class which never consented to their enactment, which never had even an effective voice in the matter when they were passed, then fines, imprisonment, penal servitude would be their lot. We have in Carnarvonshire thousands of acres of valuable land which at one time belonged to the peasants and the quarrymen of this county. Landlord parliaments enclosed them and appropriated them to the use of their friends, and the peasants had no voice in the matter at that time. When the vote was given them it was too late to stir.

Supposing you went there to-morrow, pulled down the fences, turned your cattle on to the land of which your fathers were robbed, supposing you trapped the game that you found on your ancient patrimony, you would be prosecuted by the very class who are setting at naught laws which are distasteful to them. Tories seem to think they can choose their laws a la carte, pick out those which suit their palate, and leave the rest for anybody else who likes that sort of thing. They conceive a one-sided class war in which they can with impunity blow up the legislative bridges and railroads along which democratic hopes are inching to their realization while the people look on meekly and submissively without interfering with any of the sheltered pathways of their assailants.

Negotiating a Revolution.

They have forgotten the history of their own country. They have overlooked the daring and indomitable love of liberty which has inspired men of British blood throughout the ages. No men of spirit could endure tamely such a defiance of their fundamental liberties. They are seeking to establish an oligarchic tyranny over the descendants of the men who destroyed monarchies and great churches when they became an instrument of oppression. They are negotiating a revolution in this kingdom. (Cheers.) They are doing so with all the blind headlong recklessness which has invariably characterized those who insist on retaining privileged position in an age where all classes are possessed by manlier ideas than those which make privilege tolerable. The men who propitiate revolutions rarely see them through.

The New Second Chamber.

There is one reform which the action of the House of Lords has made essential, and that is the abolition of the present Second Chamber. (Cheers.) The Prime Minister has already announced that next year he will introduce a measure for a new Second Chamber. It is not for me to say what it will be. But one thing I can predict. It will be a chamber in which all parties, all sections, all creeds will have equal treatment. (Hear, hear.) No self-respecting country can tolerate any longer the arrogant claim of those peers that they have a hereditary right, without authority from the nation, to fashion to their own tastes and ideas the laws under which forty-five millions of people are governed. (Cheers.)

CHOIRS "HANTECEDENTS."

Lord Alverstone's gift of song has sent the tourist on his track. There is a story, says the Daily Chronicle, that one Sunday an American lady attended the morning service at St. Mary's Abbot, Kensington, and asked the vergers which of the chorists in the chancel was the Lord Chief Justice. "Well, mum," replied that dignitary, "that is the vicar, and then the curates, and I'm the vergers; but as for the choir—as long as they do their duty we don't inquire into their hanteecedents."

CANADA'S GRAND OLD MAN ON 93RD BIRTHDAY

Lord Strathcona Sat at His Desk Working as Usual, Labored for Eighty Years

The grand old man sat at his desk working away at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of a hot August day in the heart of London, says the London Chronicle. It was his 93rd birthday yesterday.

He was not driven to work by the reason which induces most people to keep at it. After 80 years of strenuous effort he has accumulated enough wealth to put him high up among the great ones of the earth. What was it, then, which kept him chained to his desk at an age when most of us would be thinking of "slipped ease"? Duty, and nothing else. Duty has been the watchword of Lord Strathcona's life.

In serving himself he has served his day and generation, and that service still calls him to his post. The High Commissioner for the Canadian Dominion seemed rather surprised that a representative of The Daily Chronicle should take any note of the fact that he was within seven years of attaining his century of life. "How am I celebrating my birthday?" said his lordship. "By keeping at my desk. I never take any notice of it in any other way. And, as it happens, to-day I have a little more work than usual to do, because it is the last of the busy part of the season."

The reply was characteristic of the man. Seated at his desk in the Victoria street office, Lord Strathcona was surrounded with papers which claimed his attention as the representative of the great Canadian Dominion. There were few signs of age to be seen. The dark eyes flashed under the shaggy eyebrows like those of a man of 50. He talked with energy and animation of the great country whose interests he guards in the Motherland. Indeed, as Mr. Goldwin Smith once said, Lord Strathcona must be accepted as a great natural fact, like Niagara Falls or Lake Superior.

Therefore we almost lose the sense of wonder when we hear of the man of 93 receiving 2,000 guests, as he did last month on Dominion Day at the Queen's hall. Or when, two years ago, he rushed over to Canada on business and was back again within 16 days, having in the interval traveled 10,000 miles.

"To Be Greater Than Ever." "I have been connected with the Dominion for three-quarters of a century," he said. "It is a very great country now; but it is nothing to what it will become in the future. Within another quarter of a century it will have a population greater than that of the United Kingdom at the present time, perhaps even more than that. It has everything to make it a great nation. "But it is a nation which, I feel convinced, will always remain closely and indissolubly allied to the Mother Country, both from a commercial and a national point of view. There is no more loyal part of the British Empire than the Dominion of Canada. It is proud of its connection with the Empire." "And can you tell the readers of The Daily Chronicle how to live to your age, Lord Strathcona?"

"By not thinking about old age at all," was the reply, "but just going on and doing your work. Work—that is the best means of prolonging life, coupled with moderation in eating and drinking."

Throughout yesterday, messages of congratulation were pouring in to Lord Strathcona from all parts of the Empire. They came from royalty, from the ministers of the Dominion, from old colleagues in the work of developing Canada, and from all sorts and conditions of men.

So Lord Strathcona enters his 94th year still in harness. Honors have fallen thickly upon the young Scotch lord who went out to seek his fortune, but no one can say that they have not been fully earned. He is the greatest of our Empire-builders. He is an Imperialist of the best sort. He was created a peer in 1887. He is a Privy Councillor, a Fellow of the Royal Society, a D. C. L. of Oxford and Dublin, an LL.D. of Cambridge, Aberdeen, Glasgow, Manchester, Dublin, Queenstown, Laval, Yale, Ottawa and Toronto Universities.

And he shows no signs of giving up the great work to which he has set his hand.

An Irishman brought before a magistrate on a charge of vagrancy was thus questioned: "What trade are you?" "Shure, now, yer honor, an' I'm a sailor." "You a seafaring man! I question whether you were ever at sea in your life." "Shure, now, an' does yer honor think I came over from Ireland in a wagin?" retorted the Irishman.

Port Angeles

Ten years ago the investors and residents of Port Angeles expected and anticipated the coming of a railroad. Year after year passed by but still the railroad did not come. Many were skeptical about it ever coming. A few had confidence in the advent of the railroad and knew that the time was not far distant when Port Angeles would have railway connection with the Eastern States.

To-day the realization of the anticipation of the wise men of Port Angeles, is at hand. The railroad is not yet completed, but the grading which has been under way for the last six months is completed into Port Angeles. Do you realize what the coming of a railroad means to a city which for twenty-five years has been practically shut off from the rest of the commercial centres of the West? Not for many years has the prospects in any town or city on the Pacific Coast been brighter than in Port Angeles at the present time. Good times prevail throughout the district and everybody is talking about the Chicago-Milwaukee Railway.

Port Angeles has one of the finest natural harbors and breakwaters on the Pacific Coast. It has all the makings of a commercial metropolis, and with rail connection its future is assured.

We are offering in this growing city the balance of the

TO-DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

It was many years after the cession of Acadia, or Nova Scotia, to England, by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, before the British actually obtained a strong hold on the country; and the office of British governor at Annapolis was never a sinecure. The lawlessness of some of the people and the powerlessness of the officials of the colony to maintain order are both illustrated in an order issued by Governor Armstrong on September 12, 1735. Its purpose was as follows:—Complaints have been made of various thefts and robberies committed. This authorizes the said inhabitants to keep Watch and Ward for the Detecting and Apprehending the Actors of all such Crimes. They are authorized to challenge and fire upon (if the suspected person does not answer after the third challenge) any persons approaching their houses or property at an unreasonable time of the night (by which is meant from an hour after sunset to fair daylight). In all cases they are to report to the governor at once. A few months earlier it had proved necessary to forbid "wild fellows," on pain of fine or imprisonment, catching the horses in the field and rasing them to the great detriment of the beasts."

Francis I. King of France, who laid the foundation of French colonization of Canada, was born on this date, September 12, 1544. He succeeded Louis XII on the throne in 1515, a few years after Denis de Honfleur had visited the coast of Canada and declared the whole region annexed to France. This formed the basis of claim to territory and possibilities of power which might have made Francis the greatest of European sovereigns and his "Field of the Cloth of Gold" a reality rather than a pageant. Francis was an ambitious ruler and was eager to extend his empire in the new and unknown regions. Jacques Cartier won the king's favor for his schemes, and when that explorer returned from his first voyage Francis was stirred to wild enthusiasm by new visions of empire. The monarch was so pleased with the result of Cartier's second voyage, when King Donnacona and nine Indian chiefs were brought back as visible trophies for his royal eye, that he made Cartier captain-general of New France, and appointed the Sieur de Roberval first viceroy of his New World empire. The latter's attempt to found a settlement ended in privation and failure. Francis died in 1547, De Roberval was soon afterward lost at sea or slain by the Indians, and for half a century the attempt to found a New France beyond the seas was abandoned.

FIRST THINGS

The first of those terrible engines of warfare known as the Gatling gun was invented in 1862 by Richard Jordan Gatling, who was born in North Carolina 35 years ago to-day. Gatling, the son of a rich planter, was well educated, and early devoted himself to scientific work and mechanical experiments. His first device was a screw propeller for steamships, on which, on applying for a patent, he found himself anticipated by Ericsson. Next he contrived a machine for planting rice, wheat and other grain in drills, which proved highly successful. Having used his inventive genius in such a manner as to assist in feeding and preserving humanity, he next set about the task of contriving a machine for killing his fellows. There were crude rapid-fire guns in use when Gatling turned his attention to the subject, but they were of little practical value. The Gatling gun soon led to a revolutionizing of artillery, and until his death, ten years ago, the inventor devoted his time almost exclusively to perfecting and manufacturing that formidable weapon, which has been adopted by all the armies of the world. Tens of thousands of graves now attest to the deadly accuracy of the slaying machine invented by Gatling.

"GREEN STOCKINGS" PROVES MERITORIOUS

Allen Players Present Popular Mason Play; Actors Generally Excellent

Miss Verna Felton and the Allen Players made another hit last evening in A. E. W. Mason's delightful play, "Green Stockings," presented at the Victoria theatre before a well-filled house. The stock company presented the comedy in its best style, and the acting on the whole was spontaneous and artistic. Miss Felton was, as usual, the central character and, together with Mrs. Allen, provided the principal life of the play. In the role of Celia Faraday the leading lady was admirable, and presented the two-sided of the spinster's character with such well-balanced emotion and humor that the part seemed to actually live. Both she and Mrs. Allen were particularly clever in the closing part of Act II, where they sustained a feigned grief in the face of a preposterously humorous situation. Mrs. Allen convulsed the house with one of the cleverest pieces of comedy acting that has been seen here for many months, and she was, in a subtle way, even cleverer in Act III, after breaking a rigid rule of total abstinence for her niece's sake.

Mr. Kennedy was unusually unlike Mr. Kennedy in the role of Robert Tarver, and the loss of the identification marks was a happy thought. The acting was pleasantly fluent, and showed the actor generally much more familiar with "business" than in times gone by. But, f-a-n-c-y is not pronounced "fawncy," even in England where c-a-a-n't is something approximating "Cawn't."

Mr. Feuzler has a pleasing mellow voice which, however, should be a little more yielding and ingratiating in such loveable scenes as the last act provided. Miss Lillian Fischer is a clever little actress, and, as one of the younger sisters of "Green Stockings," Celia, was excellent throughout, while Lady Thelchard, another of the same series, was altogether fascinatingly acted by Mrs. Michael Hallward, whose every gesture and intonation was artistic. As the pater familias of the play, Chas. Connors was good, but like his admiral friend only slightly less so, badly "made up," while some parts were taken by Messrs. Biran Eagan, Howard Higgins and Charles Clapp.

With regard to one minor point of the production it might be pointed out that though the pages of the London Times may be palatable to its readers it is neither good form nor necessary to turn over its pages, even in search of a birth, marriages' and deaths' column.

CAUGHT IN BELTING.

Chinese Workman in Shingle Mill is Badly Bruised About the Head.

While at work in the Victoria Shingle Company's mill on David street yesterday afternoon Ah Fong was caught in the belting and whirled around a couple of times before he could be released by the stopping of the machinery.

The man was badly bruised about the head but the wonder was that he was not killed or had some bones broken. The police ambulance was called and first aid was rendered to the injured man by Driver Walton and Jailer Brogan, after which Fong was taken to the Royal Jubilee hospital and there he was attended by Dr. Bapty.

This morning the man was reported at the hospital to be resting comfortably and he is expected to be all right in a few days.

LANDLORD SUCCEEDS.

Recovers From Tenant Who Leaves Without Giving Notice of Intention.

In county court yesterday afternoon Judge Lamphurn heard an action in which the landlord sought to recover damages from a former tenant who had left, as he said, without any notice. This was Stewart v. Oliver, and it resulted in a judgment for the plaintiff for $30 in all.

Mr. Stewart stated that his tenant had left the house at the end of April, and had left the premises in a state which required some work to put them into habitable condition again. He could have had a tenant for the house from the first of May but the prospective one would not take the house in its then state.

The defendant said he had given a two weeks' notice through the medium of his son-in-law, and at that time Mr. Stewart had no objection to make, nor did he make any objection when he gave him the key at the conclusion of his tenancy.

Several witnesses were heard in the case, and after his honor had heard arguments from R. C. Lowe for the plaintiff and Frank Higgins for the defendant he awarded the plaintiff $30 on account of the departure of the tenant without notice and $10 for damages to the premises. The claim of the plaintiff for the amount of water and light bills he had to pay was not allowed.

A RAILWAY IN ICELAND.

At present methods of travel in Iceland are of the most primitive description; a few carriage roads exist in the south, with bridges over the rivers, but generally throughout the island journeys are made on horseback, over bridle-paths or no paths at all, and streams have to be forded. A few years ago the Althing (national assembly) voted funds for surveying the route of a railway from the capital, Reykjavik, in an easterly direction through a comparatively populous and thriving region, and one much frequented by tourists. Plans are now complete for this line, which will run from the capital over the Thingvall plain to the Ofunga bridge, a distance of about fifty-eight miles. The estimated cost of construction is $1,000,000. Ultimately it is proposed to extend the line to Thorajaa, with two branches from that point, one leading to the geysers, and the other to Oerbak. The railway project has led to ambitious plans of drainage and irrigation along the proposed route, opening up extensive pasture-lands and enlarging the already important dairy industry of the country. To the tourist the railway will offer an agreeable substitute for the present tedious journey by pony to the geysers, Mount Hecla, and other points of interest.

SHERBROOKE PEOPLE NOT IN SYMPATHY

Ex-Mayor of Quebec Town Thinks Thaw Events Not as Stated in Press Reports

"You can say at once that there was no public sympathy among the reputable citizens of Sherbrooke, Que., with Harry Thaw," said William Farwell, ex-mayor of Sherbrooke, and for forty years general manager of the Eastern Townships Bank, and for ten years its president before it became incorporated with the Quebec Bank.

"I have been amazed to read," he continued, "some of the statements published in the press in this section of the country in regard to Thaw's reception in Sherbrooke. It was stated that he was acclaimed by thousands of people and cheered to the limit by the whole populace. The facts are that there was a crowd of less than a hundred outside the courthouse, and that all the cheering which was done in the courtroom and which called for the caustic comment of the judge was done by a few Americans from Baltimore, who have summer residences at North Hatley, a few miles from Sherbrooke, and who came to Sherbrooke to have a good time and at the same time to see Thaw."

"No one can regret more than the ordinary citizens of Quebec the spectacle which was presented of the British law being made the football of lawyers anxious to get the Thaw money but I can assure you as a life-long resident of the eastern townships that there was no such sentiment in Thaw's favor as you have been led to believe by the press dispatches."

Mr. Farwell has a good right to express an opinion on the subject as he was born in the province of Quebec and was actually educated in the town of Sherbrooke itself. Moreover his public life has kept him closely in touch with the sentiment of the people there.

Not only has he occupied himself very closely with the bank's affairs to the extent that his name is a household word in connection with its success. He is one of the proprietors of the Sherbrooke Gazette, and is connected closely with many manufacturing concerns. In addition to being an ardent apostle for the prevention of tuberculosis, he has interested himself in many other lines of humane endeavor. He was mayor of Sherbrooke in 1907-8, and is strongly opposed to the municipal ownership of public utilities.
